Boy Shot, Pistol Packing Trio Sought

Police are searching for three men who went through the Sunset addition last night waving a gun.

The trio is suspected of shooting 15-year-old Sherman Bonds as he walked on North street.

A complaint was received by police that the trio was driving in the area in a green Chrysler displaying a pistol in a threatening manner. They spotted what they thought were the suspect's car and chased it but the car eluded them.

Later, the Bonds youth was shot near the West Gate intersection on North street. The boy told officers he was walking on the sidewalk when a green Chrysler pulled up behind him and he heard a shot.

He said he started running and then a second shot was fired and a bullet struck him in the thigh.

The boy said he ran to a nearby car and the unidentified driver took him to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Wearing 4 Hats Breeze For Pearson

By SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

WYATT — Being on call 24-hours a day in four lines of duties has become a way of life for John "Bud" Pearson, City Marshal, fire chief, street and water commissioner of Wyatt and a deputy sheriff of Mississippi county.

Pearson, 48, is originally from East Prairie. He has served in Wyatt since February of 1968. Prior to that he lived in Charleston and was night police chief five of the eight years he was on the force.

"This is a smaller town, I know everyone and they know me," Pearson said. "It's like working with one big family, I know what to expect from each one and I must say that I have had very little trouble from anyone during my three years here."

"Shucks, I like it down here" was his reply when asked if he preferred the smaller town.

Pearson's duties as marshall include patroling the streets and keeping the peace.

"We've had a few speeders but it doesn't take long to get that stopped," he said.

Out of towners are sure to attest to that fact if their judgment is based on facial expression, Pearson has the typical policeman's expression of sternness, quickly changed by a smile and a keen sense of humor. Salt and pepper hair, horn rimmed glasses, mustache (grown for the sesquicentennial) and the ever present cigar would make him recognizable even out of uniform.

He is proud of his record of solving all but one of the breakins which have occurred since he has been in Wyatt. The most frequent offenses are disorderly conduct and these are not too serious, Pearson said. Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons are the busiest times and since last December he has had a deputy, Eddie Clark, to assist him in his police work.

"Only had one person to knock me down since I've been here and that was a woman," Pearson said with a laugh. "She was driving drunk and after I got her out of the car she caught me off guard and Pow, she let me have it." "She was a big one but I handled her."

Pearson is chief of the six-member volunteer fire department, keeps the truck in top working condition and holds fire drills every Tuesday night.

As street commissioner, his main duty is to see that repairs are made and he operates the road grader. Duties under the water commissioner category include repairs to water lines and collection of deliquent water bills.

"We furnish water to the truck stops out at the junction and as it always happens, last winter on the coldest night we had, I got a call here at home about 2 a.m. from the junction saying they didn't have any water," he said.

"One pump wasn't working and the other was stuck and by the time I got the tanks filled it was time for breakfast and time to go on duty as marshal." "That's just part of the job though and most of the time its peaceful and quiet and you need a little excitement every now and then to keep you on your toes."

Pearson and his wife, Wanda, have three daughters; Wanda Lee, who graduated from high school last year; Carla Mae, 15 and Yvonne Gale, 12.

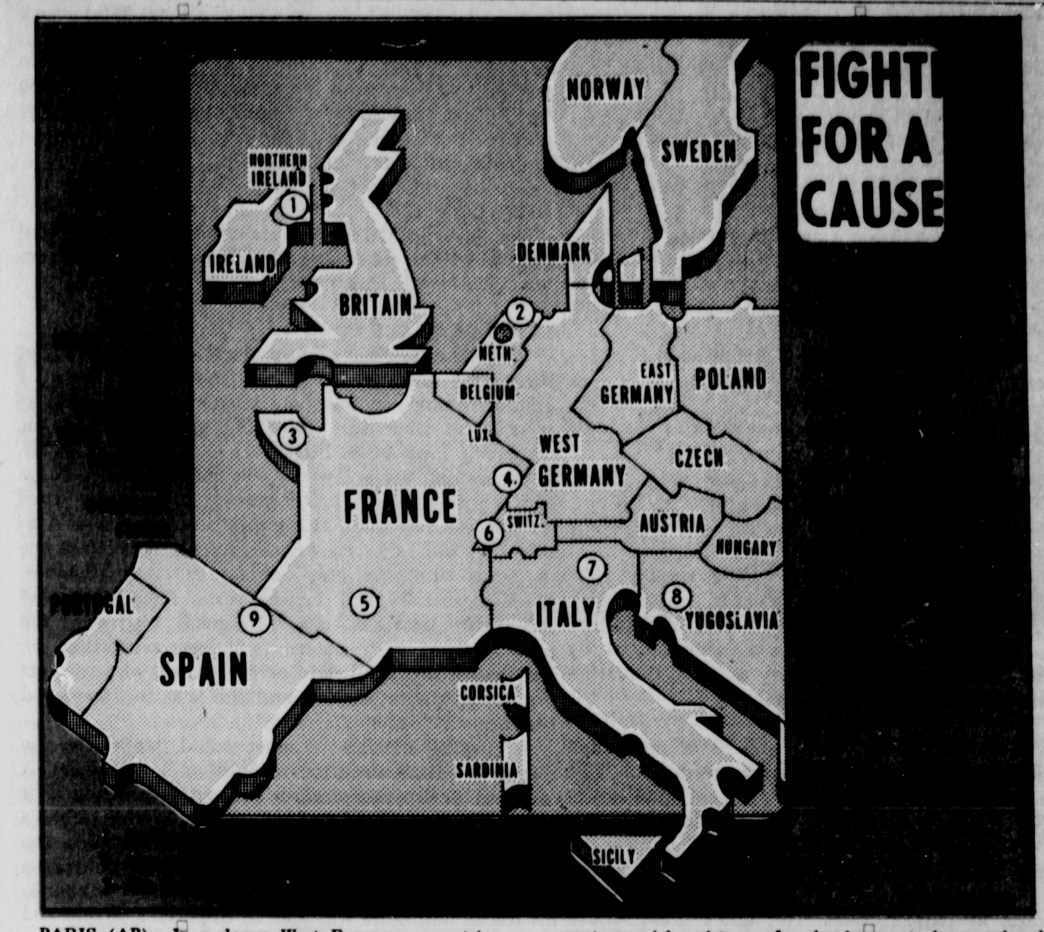

When asked if he had any hobbies he replied:

"Don't have the time anymore, I was raised in the woods so to speak and used to go hunting every chance I got, now that will have to wait till I retire I guess and I'm not planning on that any ways soon."

Recuperating now from surgery for the removal of a kidney stone and two ribs broken during the surgery, Pearson is anxious to return to work, hopefully within a month.

"If it wasn't for these ribs I'd feel fine, don't that beat all, getting your ribs broke on an operating table; the doctor thought it was kinda funny but I be danged if I do, why they hurt worse than the incision," he chuckled.

Broken ribs and all it's a sure bet that Pearson will return to work patrolling the streets, grading streets, mending water lines, fighting fires and in general keeping the peace for the good guys of Wyatt.

PARIS (AP)— In a dozen West European countries, more than a score of minorities are trying to assert themselves.

They are nationalists, sparatists, autonomists, regionalists or those who are culturally obsessed. Few make headlines abroad, except the Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland. But motivations are much the same everywhere--race, culture, language and economic status.

They tend to split into factions. The IRA wants to unite all of Ireland but a splinter faction wants to do it violently and at once.

The Welsh and Scottish have activists too. Both have increased their vote in recent years, but have nevertheless lost their parliamentary seats.

Hopes for a Welsh nation still live, but only barely in a practical sense. The Welsh National party wants political action within the existing framework. The Welsh Languare Society, whose activists tear down English-language road signs, wants a cultural rebellion.

For sheer numbers, France leads with the Bretons, Pasques, Alsace-Lorraine regionalists, Corsicans, Catalonians, Flemings and Occitanians--not to mention an occasional "Long Live Free Savoy" daubed on the walls of that Alpine province on the Italian frontier.

Of three million Bretons in northwest France, a million speak Celtic Breton, Autonomists feel that Brittany lost its independence in the 16th century and has been abused by Paris ever since.

Two years ago, 55 Bretons were jailed after bombings, and activist groups are currently lying low. Officials dispute their claim to widespread support, but it is hard to find a Breton who doesn't think that Paris owes him something.

The Corsicans are remnants of political "clans," and the Occitanians want the language of Oc taught around Toulouse. In that tongue you say "oc" for yes, instead of "oui."

In Alsace and Lorraine, where most people speak a Germanic dialect, the problem is learning enough French at school to compete for quality jobs. A small movement wants special assistance for development along regional lines, with their own language honored.

Just over the border in Switzerland, the Jura Assembly seeks autonomy for the French-speaking portion. They scored a victory recently when the canton's voters gave the Jurassians permission to decide their own future.

In Belgium, street fighting often pits the northerners, called the Flemings because they speak Dutch-like Flemish, against the southern Walloons, who speak French. The Walloons were once the majority dispensing justice and education only in French. Today, the Flemings are a majority, and light industry has made their area richer. Both camps resent bilingualism as it exists in the Brussels area.

Language also sets apart 500,000 Dutchmen known as Frisians who live along the German bight of the North Sea. They militantly defend their language and culture.

Sweden's foreign activists are the Croatians. The rightwing political group called Ustashi recently drew attention to its independent Croatia idea by occupying a Yugoslav consultate and later by fatally wounding the Yugoslav Ambassador. Yugoslavs, rather than Slovenes, are a minority, occasionally militant, in Austria. Their area annexed after a 1921 referendum, the Slovenes now scatter pamphlets and paint over German-language signs when they feel their own schools and language are challenged.

Italy's creation of "special autonomy" regions blunted the drive of the Sicilian separatist movement. But passions still run high in the Alto Adige region, where militant German-speaking residents seek annexation to Austria, to which it belonged until World War I.

Spain still plays host to probably the best organized guerilla organization in Europe today, the ETA, Basque Land and Liberty.

The ETA wants an independent arxist state in the Basque provinces, then all of Spain. Full time guerrillas may number fewer than 50, but they kidnaped a West German Consul and traded him for 16 Basques on trial at Burgos.

Ellsberg Charged On Pentagon Leak Of Secret Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government told the Supreme Court today that its ability to function has been challenged by publication of the secret Pentagon war study.

Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold, opening an historic argument before the court, said the constitutional issues raised by the publication of parts of the study by the New York Times and Washington Post go beyond the issue of free speech.

"It also involves the fundamental and important right of the government to function, Griswold said.

As the rare Saturday court session began, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the court had denied the government's request that a portion of the argument be held in secret so that the classified documents involved could be discussed.

However, Burger said he and two other justices would examine secret briefs prepared by both the government and the two newspapers before the court made a ruling. He gave no indication when that ruling might come.

As the court extended temporary publication bans Friday on The Times and The Post, two other papers released some of the documents, and a federal probe of how they were leaked resulted in a warrant for the arrest of former Pentagon and State Department analyst Daniel Ellsberg.

Ellsberg had been identified by a former Times reporter as the person who gave that newspaper the secret study of U.S. involvement in the Indochina portions of which were published by six other news organizations after a Times series on the 47-volume document was halted by a circuit court order.

The high court agreed to hear the case in a 5 to 4 vote in which the dissenting justices favored allowing both newspapers to print the documents without a hearing. Both papers were allowed to publish parts of the study today but decided not to do so until the court ruled.

However, the Los Angeles Times continued today a series on the Pentagon papers it began Thursday and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch on Friday became the most recent paper to report on the secret study.

The government's week-old forecast that publication of the study would damage U.S. diplomatic relations with friendly powers appeared Friday to have been strictly limited, with only Britain expressing official concern. Other governments were reportedly disturbed but not to the point of formal protest.

The Los Angeles Times said in today's editions that the turning point decision in American involvement in Vietnam— deployment of 3,500 Marines at Da Nang on March 8, 1965—was made by the Johnson administration "without much planning."

"The landing of the Marines at Da Nang was a watershed event in the history of U.S. involvement in Vietnam," The Times quoted from a part of the secret study it said was previously unpublished. "It represented a major decision made without much fanfare."

Gen Maxwell D. Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and in 1965 the U.S. ambassador in Saigon, had "deep reservations" about the Marine deployment, The Times quoted the study as saying.

However, it said, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then U.S. commander in Vietnam, "saw in the deployment of the Marines the beginning of greater things to come" and thus backed the move.

Ellsberg's arrest was ordered on charges he had unauthorized possession of the document and failed to return it.

Draft Quota Announced By Defense Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apparently satisfied the House and Senate will reconcile differences in the draft law, the Defense Department has announced a quota of 16,000 for July and August.

"It is prudent planning and gives draft-age youths and the Selective Service notice of what's coming," one Pentagon official said Friday.

Other defense officials said the action was taken because both chambers have approved a two-year extension of the draft law, which expires June 30. They expect the differences to be resolved on other aspects of the bill with the final legislation sent to President Nixon during July.

The major difference is an amendment in the Senate version calling for a phased withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam over nine months if all U.S. prisoners of war are released. It is likely to receive a cool reception both in conference and on the House floor.

But even if the bill should be detained in Congress longer than anticipated, defense officials said the July —August quotas could be filled by college students whose deferments have ended.

A spokesman said the usual paper work for the new quotas was being processed by that draft director Curtis W. Tarr said he would not issue the call to the states until Congress completes action.

Officials said the two-month quota will be equally divided between July and August. This falls well within Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird's prediction last April that draft calls for the rest of 1971 would not top 10,000 a month.

The new calls represent a 20 per cent drop from the combined May-June calls of 20,000.

President Nixon has said he wants a "zero draft" by mid-1973, when the pending two-year draft extension would epire. Some officials, however, including outgoing Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor, have expressed doubt the all-volunteer Army can be attained in two years.

Danforth Petition Drive Called Off

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of a group circulating petitions for a constitutional amendment that would allow Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth to run for governor in 1972 has decided not to continue the drive at the request of the attorney general.

Larry Edwards, of St. Charles, chairman of the Committee for Effective Government, agreed Saturday to call off the drive after receiving a request from Danforth late Friday.

Edwards said the group has collected about 40,000 signatures of the necessary 100,009 to put the question to the voters. But he said it seemed clear that the governor would not call a special election to put the question to the voters, so the petition drive was being ended.

Wyatt Gin Fined $250

DALLAS — Wyatt Cotton Co. of Wyatt, Mo., has been fined $250 by a U. S. district court for the Eastern District of Missouri and permanently enjoined from further violations of the cotton research and promotion act, the U. S. department of agriculture reports.

Officials of USDA's consumer and marketing service said the gin firm failed to file reports and remit $1 per bale on part of the cotton purchased during the 1968 and 1969 cotton seasons as required by the act. They said the firm has now filed the reports and remitted the assessments.

The cotton research and promotion act provides for a producer asssment of $1 on each bale of upland cotton. First buyers are designated as handlers responsible for collecting and remitting the assessment. The money is used for a research and promotion program designed to strengthen the competitive position of cotton and to expand its uses.

A 20-man cotton board, selected from nominations made by cotton producer organizations, administers the program.

Israeli Guns Open Fire

Israeli antiaircraft guns opened fire today on two Egyptian jets that flew over Israeli military positions on the Suez Canal, the military command in Tel Aviv reported.

The aircraft, Soviet-built Sukhoi S47 fighter-bombers, were not hit, a spokesman said.

It was the sixth such incident since the cease-fire began last August and, as in the past, Israel lodged a complaint with the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization charging a violation of the standstill.

On the political front, King Faisel of Saudi Arabia and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said no peace can prevail in the Middle East unless all war-conquered Arab regions, including Jerusalem, are "liberated from Israeli occupation."

The two rulers said in a joint communique the restoration of the rights of the Palestinian people is also a prerequisite for peace.

The communique was announced simultaneously in Cairo and Riyadh after the Arabian monarch ended an eight-day state visit to Egypt.

MEN WANTED

There has always been a need for dedicated men to lead our country. More than 50 years ago Josiah Holland wrote in his book "The National Need" about our shortage of great men. His lines could have been written today:

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking."

Mrs. Phoebe Martin, RN, who is a cook and connoisseur of renown, ran across an anecdote in "The Ladies Aid Society Cookbook," a recent publication from New England, and passes it along. In a Vermont town, a bachelor man appeared regularly at the scene of church suppers, after all guests were gone and the ladies were "redding up," and bought leftover doughnuts at bargain rates. He didn't mind whose doughnuts he bought, for he knew there was intense rivalry among the sisters, but he always made his own test; he'd poke his finger into the hole of each doughnut and select those that fit tightest, on the theory that the smaller the hole, the more goodie. He had done this since discovering that the price was the same for large and small hole doughnuts.

So one year he presented the society with a new cutter he had fashioned in his workshop, and he purposely made it outsize with a small hole.

Of course, the ladies discovered his effort at deception (or prudent economy) and kept on using their own standard cutters for the trade, but they'd always make a dozen extra with his cutter for Willie's benefit. He was properly grateful, too. When he died, with no known kin, he left half his money to the church, the other half to the ladies aid.

Jesus was not a socialist ... In Luke 12:13-14 Jesus was talking to a large crowd when a man approached Him saying: "Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me." and Jesus replied: "Man who made me a judge or a divider over you?" Jesus didn't tax the "haves" to give to the "have-nots." Jesus said: "Take heed, and beware of covetousness ..."

A little old lady in tennis shoes jumped up and said: "I move we donate it to the Salvation Army."

There will be a heap of rhetorical nonsense aired in connection with the death of the four students at Kent State University. But one fact emerges clearly: the days of student innocence are over, along with the divine right of students to do what they please without paying a price. Apparently it does not matter if students are innocent and/or ignorant, or on a neat lark or staging a rebellion they do not understand; men in uniform called to keep order can be put in fear of their lives — an elemental fact which has been annihilated by liberal sophistry. American institutions such as the family and primary and secondary education have not failed America; the people who man them have. The students of the Kent State mob were the products of an older generation which was confused about what it was making.

Considering its annual criminal assault on the taxpayers, Social Security is not unlike the SS troops who raped and pillaged on Hitler's orders during World War II. The characterization may seem harsh, but it is not. Annually, it seems, SS is raised in one fashion or another because it never seems to provide enough. Since Americans cannot forget their senior citizens in times of inflation, what can we do, but raise the ante? This built-in assault on the taxpayers thus is endless. Since this is an election year, the House Ways and Means Committee has held another Raise-The-SS-Ante meeting and seems about to reveal a whopping increase in Social Security benefits, along with an increase in the SS taxable wage base from $7,800 to $9,000. The ever-increasing costs were never supposed to happen, and the taxpayers ought to remember Social Security's (and socialism's) lies when the Congress further takes up the guaranteed annual wage proposal (passed by the House) and the socialized medicine plan called National Health Insurance.

Social Security is a high crime, considering what it does to the young and the free. It allows no one to opt out (or "select out" as the bureaucrats say). If one were young and free and 21 and Social Security didn't have a gun in his back, he could: put his $400 a year into a retirement income policy and by age 65 have a) $42,144, or $251 a month for the rest of his life, b) the right to pass on to his estate all benefits including $15,500 in life insurance — none of which is humanley possible under the Social Security program. PRICE OF EXTREMISM

While law-abiding citizens have been harassed and threatened with laws depriving them of the right of gun ownership, militant lawbreakers continue to go merrily on their way. Breaking gun registration or ownership laws are of little moment to them except in instances like the one where the police raided a home and confiscated 605 Thompson submachine guns bought as scrap metal at a military post in 1964. Also taken in the raid was as assortment of other arms, including rifles, shotguns, pistols, antitank grenades, military rockets and ammunition. There is a vast difference between laws designed to curb the possession of such arsenals and laws restricting the basic constititutional right of the citizen who respects his obligation to society and the law, to "keep and bear arms".

A chilling instance of what could happen to the disarmed citizen occurred recently in Los Angeles. A series of newspaper pictures showed the sequence of events when an armed gunman entered a store, pulled a revolver and fired point blank at a clerk behind the counter. The pictures showed the clerk as he drew a pistol and dropped the gunman and would-be robber in his tracks before he was able to dispatch a second and probably fatal shot.

The right to defend oneself with a firearm still exists in the U. S. But, if recent gun control proposals had become law the pictures of the Los Angeles holdup attempt would have shown the tragedy of a defenseless citizen being shot down by a felon who quite possibly would never have been apprehended. Such would be the price of gun control extremism.

MEETING TWIN GOALS

People cannot exist in a vacuum. They need jobs and opportunity. That is why so much of the opposition to industrial growth in the name of environmental conservation is like talking about the weather. The fact is that most progressive companies and industries have twin goals. They seek to grow in response to the needs of the community. At the same time, they apply the latest environmental preservation technology to their operations, and it is not just companies in smog-ridden metropolitan areas that confront these needs.

Montana, for example, is growing, and it is fortunate to have as one of its assets one of the most progressive, investor-owned electric power companies in the country. This company has just announced a $15-million investment program in new plant and property for the year 1971 under a construction schedule that will see major additions in every section of its service area. The 1971 program will bring expansion investments of the company to more than $100 million since 1965. A major part of the 1970 expenditure involves the installation of additional facilities at one of its large, steam-electric generating plants to improve the plant's performance and further reduce stack emissions. The company has previously invested a million dollars in air purification equipment, and the 1970 additions will far exceed state environmental requirements.

Here is a practical illustration of the evolutionary steps that must be taken to insure a livable environment along with the economic development required in a growing nation of more than 200 million people.

BETTER PROTECTION
FOR FORESTS

Lookout towers and observation planes, the traditional methods of forest fire detection, may soon be obsolete.

U. S. Forest Service researchers from Montana recently reported to a University of Michigan symposium that a new remote sensing forest fire detection system worked so well in a test last year that is is scheduled to replace 25 lookout towers in western Montana and northwestern Idaho.

The system, called "bispectral forest fire detection," involves an airplane equipped with Doppler radar, heat-sensitive infrared instruments and a rapid film processor to provide in-flight maps" of surveyed areas.

The entire operation is contained in the aircraft. The information gathered is simply radioed to ground stations, which take appropriate firefighting action.

Tested for two months last summer in daily flights over an 8,000 -square-mile area in Montana and Idaho, the system spotted small campfires from as high as 15,000 feet. Because it detects heat radiation, it discovered 44 wildfires before there were any visual signs of smoke or flame.

Not only was the system faster and more dependable than observation from lookout towers and planes but it cost about $500,000 less to operate.

Strike Proves
Vital need for
Postal Reform

The strike by postal employees underscores the need for post office reform, according to W. P.Gullander, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

He said the recent strike gives weight to postal reform legislation currently pending in Congress. "Recognition of the fact that postal workers appear to have genuine grievances is an important basis for postal reform, which would bring businesslike management techniques to this vital service," he said.

Mr. Gullander said the strike would have been "unlikely" if the basic postal reform urged by the authoritative Kappel Commission had been in effect.

In a letter to Sen. Gale W. McGee ((D.-Wyo.), Chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, Mr. Gullander said, "It is now rather obvious that the dissatisfaction of the postal workers is largely due to the delay in responding to their grievances—and more particularly to the continued delay of wage adjustments. On the other hand, there is strong evidence that postal reform would go far in removing some of the factors responsible for the postal service's problems in employee relations and elsewhere."

The NAM supports the reform measure, Mr. Gullander said, "because it aims to provide the postal service with the same type of management personnel policies and other techniques that have been outstandingly successful in the private sector."

A FOOLISH COURSE

It has been said that if man is to continue to live on this planet, he must become more concerned about his environment. By the same token, he must become more concerned with ways to utilize every technological breakthrough that will help produce the things he needs with as little contamination of the environment as possible. Environmentalists, who oppose nuclear power generation, act in the mistaken belief that pure air and water can be preserved by simply putting the brakes on this latest scientific advance in human knowledge.

Testimony before the congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy has given what press reports call "... a chilling account of potential disaster from air and water pollution if conventional methods are used to satisfy the nation's growing hunger for electrical power." Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, Presidential Science Adviser, warned that, "Without nuclear power, the nation's energy supply in the next century and perhaps the latter portion of this century would be in serious jeopardy." Another witness, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, testified that, "With good planning and continued dedicated work on the part of those in the nuclear field, our electric utilities and those government agencies that regulate our nation's power systems, we can have safe, clean and reliable nuclear power -- as much of it as we will need."

The environmental problems of nuclear power involving "thermal pollution" and radiation are susceptible to solution according to top nuclear energy authorities. As long as population growth continues at the present rate, and as long as we wish to live as a civilized nation, whose people consume energy in soaring amounts, there is no alternative but to look to the frontiers of science for answers to environmental problems. Those who turn their backs on this fact advocate a course of irreparable folly.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--As part of a Federal Power Commission effort to ramrod through a $4 billion gas rate increase, FPC officials set up an illegal, secret meeting with an industry spokesman only weeks before his case was to be heard.

The clandestine affair was thwarted by a pro-consumer FPC official who charged that the secret session would violate FPC regulations and could lead to a sell-out to the natural gas industry.

We learned of the meeting from a sheaf of confidential documents which were slipped to us so that we might inform the public of the costly hornswaggle which would affect half the United States.

The plot to sock the American housewife with a whopping gas rate increase is a complicated affair, as we explained in earlier columns. What it boils down to is this:

FPC Chairman John Nassikas and his pro-industry underlings sought to grant $4 billion worth of increases by using gas industry figures which they had already been told were unreliable.

These figures--disputed by Nassikas's own economic staff--attempt to show that the industry must get huge rate increases if it is to develop new gas reserves.

FPC rules clearly state that no staffer can meet off-the-record with a potential witness who is directly involved in a disputed case. This rule is designed to prevent the FPC from giving away its case or making any deals with the potent industries it is supposed to regulate.

Yet Tom Joyce, head of the Bureau of Natural Gas, set up a closed-door meeting between the FPC top brass and John Jacobs, the persuasive chairman of the Gas Reserves Committee of the American Gas Association.

The conference was expressly designed to exclude consumer advocates such as the American Public Gas Association who were also parties to rate cases.

In a memo dated March 18, 1970, FPC General Counsel Gordon Gooch, the very man charged with enforcing the commission's rules, gave the meeting his personal approval, even thoguh John Jacobs was scheduled to testify on the case on May 1, 1970.

On March 23, a few days before Jacobs was to huddle with his supposed regulators, an FPC official revolted.

Haskell Wald, head of the FPC Office of Economics and long a fighter for the consumer, outlined his apprehension in a confidential memorandum to General Counsel Gooch.

"IMPRESSION OF COLLUSION"

Wald's memo is worth quoting at length for it shows more vividly than any of the Nassikas Papers the Byzantine world of the FPC, where pro-consumers and pro-industry factions are locked in combat.

"It will be a closed meeting," Wald wrote. "There will be no transcript or official minutes and there will not even be a public announcement that it is being held."

Some quarters already viewed the industry figures with "intense suspicion," Wald said. He warned of the "danger of criticism if word of the meeting and the subjects discussed reaches outsiders."

Jacobs would be "clued in" by the meeting on what his testimony should be and might "also gather suggestions on how he should shape the responses on cross-examination. No other witness will be given this advantage."

Wald frankly suggested it might well "create an impression of collusion." Finally, he said, such a meeting violated both written rules and "definite instructions," and therefore should be called off.

Wald's timely protest succeeded. The meeting was cancelled a few days before it was to be held.

Gooch asserted to my associate Les Whitten that he was "responsible for calling it off." He did not mention Wald's protest or his own earlier approval of the meeting. Nassikas has declined comment. Jacobs was in Morocco and could not be reached.

Footnote: Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, chairman of the House Small Business Special Problems subcommittee, is calling Nassikas in July to testify on our revelations. Our documents, said Smith, cast doubt on the FPC's figures. Smith said it appeared that small businessmen, housewives and the poor would be victimized by the $4 billion increase.

--BRAZILIAN SUGAR PLUM--

We told earlier this month how millions of dollars in U.S. sugar quotas were handed to racist South Africa despite congressional strictures against buying sugar from nations that discriminate against American citizens.

We have now learned that the Brazilian dictatorship will receive a 519,909-ton sugar quota worth millions despite a Congressional edict from the House Agriculture Committee barring quotas to countries where the benefits don't sift down to the people who grow the sugar.

Instead, Brazil's dictatorship sees to it that the sugar oligarchs in the northeast plantations get the sugar cash from the U.S. Few of the benefits reach the workers.

When Professor Joe Page of Georgetown Law School tried to explain this to the Senate Finance Committee, he received one of the year's rudest receptions on Capitol Hill. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the committee, had issued a grandeloquent handout saying he wanted to examine "how the benefits of (the quotas) flow through to the working man and serve to improve the standard of living in the nation involved."

Page stated that wages are often less than $5.25 per six-day week for the Brazilian peasants who grow the sugar. But as he began to detail how the government and sugar kings conspire to starve and cheat the 500,000 northeastern Brazilian peasants, Long, champion of "the working man," stumbled up from his seat and abruptly left the hearing room.

Senator Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, was the only member of the committee who stayed to listen to Page's testimony.

Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., however, has been working to curtail giveaways to countries where the American bounty never reaches the workers in the field.

ELECTRONIC 'INTERCEPTS' PAY OFF:
Atty. Gen. Asserts New Wiretap Law
Heightens Protection of Nation's Privacy

by Victor Riesel

There is electrifying talk about snooping. There are changes of invasion of privacy on the political and intellectrual and cultural fronts. There is the view that the wiretap and the electronic bug are the ingredients of a terminal case.

But Attorney General John Mitchell, in whose hands is the power (with the authority of the courts) to intercept conversations, thinks differently. He believes this nation is helpless in the fight against the social enemy without modern crime-fighting weapons.

He has an intriguing view of the benefits of the new wiretap law. I asked him to spell it out. He did, exclusively for this column:

By
John N. Mitchell
Attorney General for the United States

Washington:-- Federal agents keeping watch on a narcotics ring recently uncovered more than they were looking for--not only evidence of narcotics violations, but also evidence that a bank robbery and murder were being planned as well.

Acting on this evidence, the agents moved promptly. The suspects were apprehended, a bank robbery was prevented and a life was saved from a violent end. Criminal indictments followed and the intended murder victim -- a narcotics pusher -- became a government witness. Nine offenders entered guilty pleas, four others were found guilty, and the ringleader was sentenced to 20 years on narcotics charges and 10 years for assault on a federal officer.

Without the authority to use a court-ordered wiretap, there is little doubt that these criminals would have been successful in most, if not all, of their plans.

This authority was provided in Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 allowing electronic surveillance by the federal government with approval and close supervision by federal courts.

It was granted by Congress in an effort to give federal authorities a better tool to protect the public from organized crime and it has proven to be a most effective weapon in the fight to defeat this threat to our society.

From mid-February 1969, when Title III authority first was utilized, until April of this year, a total of 315 court orders for intercepts were approved and executed in criminal investigations. In two years, only one application for an intercept was rejected by a federal judge. Of the 315 orders, all but 12 were productive, and two-thirds of all the intercepted communications have been incriminating.

More than 900 arrests and 100 convictions have resulted so far.

For example:

-- 55 persons were arrested in Newark including the boss of one of the nation's major organized crime syndicates, and he and 45 others pleaded guilty to gambling charges.

-- The first intercept under Title III resulted in the seizure of 124 pounds of pure heoin valued at $8 million, being smuggled in cans of paella oil from Spain.

-- Title III evidence resulted in indictments last month against 152 persons on charges of gambling and obstructing justice. Among those involved were 16 Detroit policemen, including one inspector, three lieutenants and seven sergeants.

-- Court-supervised wiretaps have resulted in arrests of about 190 persons on narcotics charges in the past two years and the seizure of $14 million in hard drugs.

Due to the effectiveness of electronic surveillance, its use increased in the second year, but the length of intercepts has been reduced, and the rate of requests for extensions has been cut in half. In fact, in 1970 nearly two-thirds of the intercepts were used for less time than originally authorized.

By law, no original request (or an application for extension) can exceed 30 days. Most of original requests are for 15 days. In 1970, the average lasted less than 15 days.

Some fears have been expressed that federal wiretapping would lead to wide-spread eavesdropping and wholesale invasion of privacy of law-abiding citizens. Experience of more than two years has not only proven these fears to be groundless, but we have found that the protection of individual privacy has improved under the strictures of this law.

This law provides for a prison sentence of up to five years and a $10,000 fine for conviction of illegal electronic surveillance. In addition to this severe penalty, civil action may be brought under this law to recover actual and punitive damages and attorney costs.

Title III has therefore become indispensable in reducing illegal eavesdropping as well as in combatting organized crime and narcotics trafficking. Complaints of private wiretaps have dropped by more than two-thirds of the approximately 100 complaints a month received before passage of the 1968 Act.

The first conviction for private wiretapping resulted in a five-year sentence for a blackmailer who recorded a woman's compromising calls to businessmen.

Other significant convictions of private wiretappers involved a television news employee who bugged a platform session at the 1968 Democratic National Convention and an expert electronic eavesdropper involved in several highly publicized trials who transported an illegal recording device from one state to another. Last month 346 tie-clip microphones voluntarily were surrendered under the law which prohibits the manufacture, sale and possession of such electronic defects.

Dire predictions that Title III would lead to widespread snooping and invasion of privacy without a corresponding benefit in law enforcement have proven wrong. Not a single instance of abuse or misuse of the authority or power has been reported, and the effectiveness of Title III in the war against organized crime is firmly established.

Court-authorized electronic surveillance has been aptly described as our single most valuable weapon in this fight. That is important, because Congress granted Title III authority in an effort to strike hard at organized crime.

Congress noted that organized crime had developed into corporations of corruption, indeed quasi-goverments controlled by hoodlum codes. Mob justice was dispensed with threats, beatings, and summary judgments--a quick opinion, a nod, could mean execution. Potential witnesses were abducted, threatened, beaten, bought off, or killed.

Better tools for reaching organized crime have been needed and Congress gave us one when it passed Title III. Although effective use has been made of this authority, the Department of Justice has never been careless or abusive with it. The law authorized the temporary, emergency use of electronic intercepts followed by court application within 48 hours, but I have never granted approval of installations under this special section.

In summary, the only repression that has resulted from Title III is the repression of criminals. The only ones who have had their privacy invaded are persons who have given courts reason to believe that they have been engaging in illegal activities.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., has announced plans for public hearings in early fall on overall use of wiretappings under Title III, both state and federal. He is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on Criminal Laws and Proocedures, and he plans a comprehensive examination of both law and practice in the area of electronic surveillance.

I feel confident that a thorough examination will show what an effective anti-crime instrument Title III has become, and prove groundless the fear of abuse that caused some to voice concern or outright opposition.

Same Old Story, Husband Chooses Wife Over Mistress

Dear Ann Landers: I was jilted twice in four years and I turned to my boss for comfort. He was married but no longer in love with his wife. We saw each other secretly for seven years.

Now it appears his wife has known about us all along--even the gifts he gave me--yet she said nothing. Last week she offered him a divorce. He didn't want one. Instead he has called off our romance. The following questions are keeping me up nights. Please supply some answers:

1. Why would a wife sit by and let her husband carry on an affair for seven years?

2. Why did he tell me he loved me and that he didn't love his wife, yet when he was faced with the choice he chose her?

3. Do you think if I went to his wife and told her everything he said about her that she might change her mind and kick him out?

4. What should I say to the rat for taking seven of the best years of my life?---Steady Reader Who Is Dying Inside

Dear Dy: If you are a steady reader you have seen your letter in this column a hundred times. Only the signatures are different.

The answers to your questions are as follows:

1. She had nothing to gain by throwing himout and everything to gain by riding out the storm.

2. This is the classic pattern for cheating husbands-- you could have predicted it.

3. Don't bore her with details. She's not interested. If she was going to kick him out she would have done so by now.

4. Don't bore him with a farewell speech. He's not interested either.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please rescue at least a million Mid-westerners who are hopelessly trapped by a larcenous gimmick called "bridal showers?"

The moment an engagement is announced the mothers start booking these ghastly parties. Some women find themselves on three or four lists. A turndown does not nullify the obligation to buy a gift. If you are unable to attend the shower, you are expected to send a gift anyway. These days it is impossible to buy anyting decent for less than $10. And please be aware that a shower gift has nothing whatever to do with the wedding gift. That's separate.

The record for grabby mothers was set by a woman in our group who is considered well bred by all standards. She boasted that her daughter's shower loot amounted to well over $2,000 in usable goods. The wedding gifts, she estimated, will come to at least three times that amount. Help!---Party Pooped And Broke

Dear PP. and B.: What makes you think bridal showers are regional? It's a Coast-to-Coast affliction.

Here are Ann Landers' ground rules based strictly on common sense:

Only one shower should be given--preferably a jointly sponsored luncheon by all the bridesmaides. It should be a kitchen shower or a bathroom shower--with a limit on what can be spent for a gift. Tops---$3.

Prenuptial parties are usually a bore, and a waste of time, money and energy. The wise bride nixes them.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of your newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

The Elegant Way To Wait

Whaley-Brown

CHARLESTON — On June 10 at 7:30 p.m. Miss Sheila Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. brown Jr., and Ronald Carl Whaley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Whaley, Alcoa, Tenn., were married in the First Baptist Church of Charleston.

The Rev. Earl R. Whaley of Liberty, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated, assisted by the Rev. H. W. Chaney, pastor of the local church. Miss Laurie Moran was in charge of the guest book.

Preceding the ceremony traditional wedding music was played and Mrs. John Newberry, soloist, accompanied on the organ by Miss Suan Brown, sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Miss Sallie Brown was her sister's only attendant.

The bride was escorted down the white - carpeted aisle by her father. She wore a Victorian gown made of Schiffli- embroidered organza over taffeta with a ribbon trim. A panel of embroidery centered the front of the gown from neckline to hemline. A bow of picotted ribbon accented the highrise waistline at the center front. The scooped neckline was edged with tiny Venice lace edging. The wrist-length Victorian sleeves were of sheer embroidery, ending with plain deep cuffs, trimmed with matching edging. The bouffant skirt featured two deep box pleats in back forming fullness that swept into a circular chapel length. Her veil was Juliet cap overlaid with Venetian lace medallions sprinkled with pearls.

The best man was the groom's father, Carl Whaley. The ushers were Tommy Martin, Gallatin, Tenn., Keith Ledbetter, Livingston, Tenn., John Davis, Nashville, Tenn., and Donald Husky, Alcoa.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Paul Hill and Miss Melissa DeLine presided over the refreshment table.

Rice bags were given to the guests by Misses Sara Jane and Sally Ann Brink, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brink of Charleston.

They will be at home in the Shelbourne Apartments in Memphis.

The bride is a graduate of Charleston high school and is a senior at Memphis State University. In the all she will enter the Baptist Memorial Hospital School of Medical Technology, Memphis.

Gentles-Oliver

EAST PRAIRIE — Miss Karen Leigh Oliver and George Wayne Gentles were united in marriage Saturday, June 12, 1971 at the Full Gospel Church in East Prairie with Rev. Bill Whitsitt performing the ceremony.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Oliver and Mrs. Eulene Gentles and the late James Gentles.

Mrs. Pearline Thurmond, organist, rendered several nuptial selections.

Miss Anita Cox and Jerry Bolden served as attendants for the young couple.

The bride chose a full length empire style gridal gown of acetate and nylon lace over acetate taffeta featuring a scalloped ruffle trim on collar and cuffs. The gown was of A line in front and the full cage style back swept gracefully to the scalloped hemline.

Her headpiece was of acetate and nylon lace petals encircled with simulated pearls and crystal trim, from which flowed the elbow- length veil of nylon tulle. She carried a nosegay of white carnations with pink nylon tulle and white lace with pink streamers, designed by Nellie Tennon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver entertained the guests immediately after the wedding by serving a two tier wedding cake, ice cream and punch.

Mr. and Mrs. Gentles are now at home at True's Motel Trailer Park, Trailer Number 1.

The former Miss Oliver is a 1971 graduate of East Prairie High. Gentles is a 1970 graduate of Sikeston.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

Blue Breezes To 16th Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — "Vida Blue is the best thing that has happened to the American League in 10 years," says second baseman Cookie Rojas of the Kansas City Royals.

Rojas, along with 33,888 fans had just watched the Oakland A's pitcher rack up his sixth shutout of the season.

Blue defeated the Royals, 7-0 Friday night for his 16th victory of the season against only two defeats. He struck out 12 and walked only one.

The victory moved the A's 10 full games ahead of Kansas City in the race for the American League West title.

Rojas had two of the five hits Blue allowed.

"He's a little bit like Sandy Koufax, but you really can't compare them," Rojas said. "Koufax pitched for 12 years and this is only the second season for this kid."

Blue took his success in stride as he has all season long.

"I don't know what I throw. I just do it. There was nothing special about this game.

"I'm never confident I'm going to win until the last batter is out," he said.

Among the spectators was Blue's mother, Sallie, from Mansfield, La. She brought along Vida's four sisters and one brother and they occupied owner Charlie Finley's private box. Finley flew the blue family to Oakland for the game.

Manager Dick Williams of the A's admits he expects Blue to win every time he pitches.

"The day will come when he doesn't win but it makes you wonder when that will be," Williams said. "Our players have so much confidence in Vida they know all they need is one or two runs to win."

Third baseman Sal Bando drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Mike Epstein hit his 10th homer of the year to make it easy for Blue.

Losing pitcher Mike Hedlund gave up only five hits but two errors and five walks helped the A's score all their runs against him.

The A's and Royals meet again this afternoon with Jim "Catfish" Hunter, 10-4, pitching for Oakland and Bruce Dal Canton, 7-2, pitching for Kansas City.

Two Out Rally Dumps Cards

You've heard of two-out rallies before but the Chicago Cubs had the kind of two-out rally baseball teams dream about.

The Cubs had two out in the seventh inning against St. Louis Friday night and then they started scoring. They didn't stop until they had 10 runs —that's T-E-N-in the biggest winning in the majors this season. All of them scored with the Cardinals needing only one more out to get out of the inning.

Chicago's 10-run explosion highlighted a 12-0 victory over the Cards and even with that kind of run-production, the Cubs were only third best in scoring in the National League Friday night.

Pittsburgh's slugging Pirates walloped five home runs and belted Philadelphia 14-4 while Atlanta exploded for 18 runs in a doubleheader-taking both ends from Cincinnati 8-6 and 10-3.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York swept a doubleheader from Montreal 4-1 and 4-2, Houston edged San Francisco 5-4 and San Diego edged Los Angeles 5-4.

In the American League, New York ripped Washington 12-2, Baltimore tripped Boston 7-3, Detroit dropped Cleveland 6-1, Milwaukee trimmed Minnesota 3-1, Chicago shut out California 2-0 and Oakland blanked Kansas City 7-0.

Pitcher Bill Bonham, who had never had a major league hit before singled twice in Chicago's big seventh inning. In fact, it was Bonham's first hit that started the rally. Glen Beckert also had two hits in the big inning as the Cubs bunched eight of their 20 hits.

Beckert, Billy Williams, Brock Davis and J.C. Martin each had three hits for the Cubs, who sent 16 men to bat in their big inning.

Bonham took over for Bill Hands after the Chicago started was struck on the right elbow by a ground ball in the fourth inning.

The Pirates used a barrage of five homers including two apiece by Jackie Hernandez and Richie Hebner to rip Philadelphia.

Willie Stargell also homered for Pittsburgh, and, for the third time in the last five games, the big Pirate slugger drove in four runs. He upped his major league leading home run and runs batted in totals to 27 and 76 respectively.

Deron Johnson and Willie Montanez each tagged two-run homers for the Phillies.

Earl Williams and Darrell Evans poked three-run homers in each game, leading Atlanta's twin victories over Cincinnati-Williams drove in four runs in the nightcap as the Braves exploded to score all of their runs in the first two innings.

In the opener, Ralph Garr doubled home Atlanta's tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and then scord on Oscar Brown's pinch single to clinch that victory.

Tony Perez had seven hits in the doubleheader for the Reds including his 10th and 11th home runs.

Buddy Harrelson drove in three runs with a single and a double and Dan Frisella fired 4 1-3 innings of scoreless relief as New York completed its doubleheader sweep against Montreal.

The Mets took the opener behind Nolan Ryan with Dave Marshall's fifth inning single driving in the tie-breaking run. Ryan scattered 11 hits and struck out 10 Expos, while Jerry Grote contributed three doubles for New York.

Pinch-hitter Jack Hiatt drilled a ninth inning single that drove in Houston's winning run and climaxed an Astro comeback to bean San Francisco and stop the Giants' seven-game winning streak.

Pitcher Gaylord Perry, working on a six-hitter, made a throwing error on an attempted sacrifice and then uncorked a wild pitch to put the Astros in business in the ninth. Hiatt's hit climaxed the rally which started when Denis Menke beat out an infield single, leading off the inning.

San Diego rallied for two runs in the ninth on Dave Campbell's bases-loaded single, and nipped Los Angeles.

Bob Barton started the winning rally with a single and Larry Stahl doubled him to third. After Angel Bravo was walked intentionally, Campbell delivered his winning hit.

Ivan Murrell and Ed Spiezio cracked consecutive homers earlier in the game for the Padres.

Football Tonight

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The 1971 football campaign begins tonight in the Coaches All-America game with West quarterback Jim Plunkett of Stanford out to show the New England Patriots of the National Football League he is worth every dime he is asking in contract negotiations.

The West is a touchdown pick over the East in the nationally televised ABC-TV 11th annual game which is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. CDT kickoff before some 45,000 fans in Jones Stadium.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner who was the number one draft selection in professional football, is yet to sign with the Patriots.

Plunkett won't say what he is asking other than to quip, "It's less than a million dollars."

Coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska will field a high -powered West offensive team. Quarterback Chuch Hixson of Southern Methodist, who holds numerous NCAA records, will back up Plunkett, Also, the West boasts such fleet receivers as Ernie Jennings of the Air Force, J.D. Hill of Arizona State and Chuck Dicus of Arkansas. Joe Orduna of Nebraska leads the ground game.

East coach Charley McClendon of Louisiana State has expressed concern over Plunkett's ability to move the ball.

"If we don't control the ball offensively, he Plunkett will probably put 17 to 24 points on the board," McClendon says.

McClendon has two effective operators at quarterback, although neither boasts the credentials of Plunkett and Hixson.

Scott Hunter of Alabama will receive the starting nod, and the number two man is Buddy Lee of LSU. Rex Kern, Ohio State's gifted quarterback, will concentrate on defense, although he will be ready if needed.

Jackson Returns

PUXICO — Jeff Jackson who was sidelined two weeks ago with arm trouble, struck out 19 and allowed only two hits Friday night as Kelly beat the host team 9-0 in a Tri-County Babe Ruth League game here Friday night.

Davis was the victim of a nine hit attack for Kelly as he took the loss.

Jackson was too fast for the Puxico batters as they just couldn't connect with the ball.

Kelly pushed across three tallies in the top of the third and that turned out to be all they needed but they added five in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Kenny Urhahn hit a three run home and Jackson and Zeigler had two runs batted in apiece.

Nebraska Grid Star Placed on Probation

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The football future of University of Negraska star Johnny Rodgers is in the hands of head football coach and athletic director Bob Devaney.

Rodgers was placed on two years probation Friday by the Lancaster County District Court after pleading guilty last month to a felony charge of larceny.

The university ruled earlier he would be permitted to attend school next year should he be placed on probation.

Judge William C. Hastings sentenced the 19-year-old in connection with a May 20, 1970, incident at a Lincoln service station.

Rodgers was a star as a sophomore flanker last fall for Nebraska's unbeaten and national championship Cornnuskers, leading the team in kickoff and punt returns and pass receiving with 35 catches for 665 yards. He was third in team scoring with 66 points.

Rodgers' attorney, Dave Pierson, of Linclin, made a plea for clemency, telling the court Rodgers' "potential for good stubstantially outweighs his potential for bad."

Before sentencing Rodgers, Hastings told the Omaha-reared youth "the real tragedy here is what you've done or may have done to the children who have looked up to you."

Hastings said a probation report had indicated Rodgers has no prior criminal record and said probation is the usual sentence is such cases.

Two other persons were arrested along with Rodgers in connection with the service station incident and all three were charged with the same offence.

According to the complaint originally filed against Rodgers by County Atty. Paul Dougals, Rodgers took an unspecified amount of money from Glen Griggs, 64, the attendant at the station in the southeast corner of Lincoln.

Dr. Russell Brown, NU dean for student development, said earlier this month his staff and a student tribunal had agreed that Rodgers could attend school next fall should he receive probation.

American League

Police defeated the Flower Basket, 17-7 in a come from behind effort in the American league opener last night. Jenkins blanked First National Bank, 16-0, in the second game.

Police got into early trouble in the first inning as the Flower Basket scooted six runs home in the first inning off of starting pitcher Shelley. Relief hurler Potashnick collected the final out of the inning. Four walks, two hit batsmen, and two singles off of Shelley sent six Basket men in to score.

Potashnick worked the final out of the game, walked in one run, then shut out the Flower Basket for the remainder of the game, yielding no hits and striking out eight. Police's Hatchett drove in the winning run in the bottom of the fourth inning with one of his three hits in the game.

Potashnick also went three for four in the Police lineup, teaming with Hatchett for six of the Force's 10 hits.

Hoskins and Baldwin connected for the Flower Basket's only hits, both in the first inning.

Seven doubles and the two hit pitching of Dan Williams boosted Jenkins into its, 16-0, shutout win over First National Bank. Williams and Vaughn connected for two of the winner's doubles. Karnes, Sauls, and Holt added the remaining two base hits.

Hunt and Vines put the two singles in the Banker's lineup.

Bedwell suffered the loss on the mound while Williams picked up the win.

World Record Set

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The Amageur Athletic Union's National Track and Field Championships follow a tough act today after a session where Rod Milburn of Southern University cracked the world record in the 120-yard high hurdles in 13 seconds flat.

Two meet records also fell and AAU titles were at stake in 12 more events today. If good weather continued, meet officials talked of chances for other records.

Milburn, the NCAA champion, dazzled a crowd of 8,100 at the University of Oregon's Hayward Field as he clipped two-tenths of a second off the world record set by West Germany's Martin Lauer in 1959.

Milburn, a 20- year - old physical education major, said he felt confident he would finish first in the finals after setting the mark in the semifinals. He did, winning in a wind -aided 13.1.

Milburn turned in the world record but it was hometown favorite Steve Prefontaine, Oregon's two -time NCAA three -mile champion, who brought the crowd to its feet.

"It was beautiful, just beautiful," Prefontaine said, after he shattered the three - mile meet record with a 12-minute, 58.6-second clocking that surpassed the 13:10.4 mark by Bob Schul in 1965.

Prefontaine's time was just off the American collegiate record of 12:53.0, set in 1966 by Gerry Lindgren of Washington State, who finished fourth Friday.

The AAU meet record in the high jump also fell as Reynaldo Brown of Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo, Calif., went 7-3, eclipsing the 7-2 mark set by John Thomas in 1960 and equalled in 1966 by Otis Burrell.

Arnie Robinson of the San Diego Track Club ousted defending champion Bouncey Moore of Oregon in the long jump.

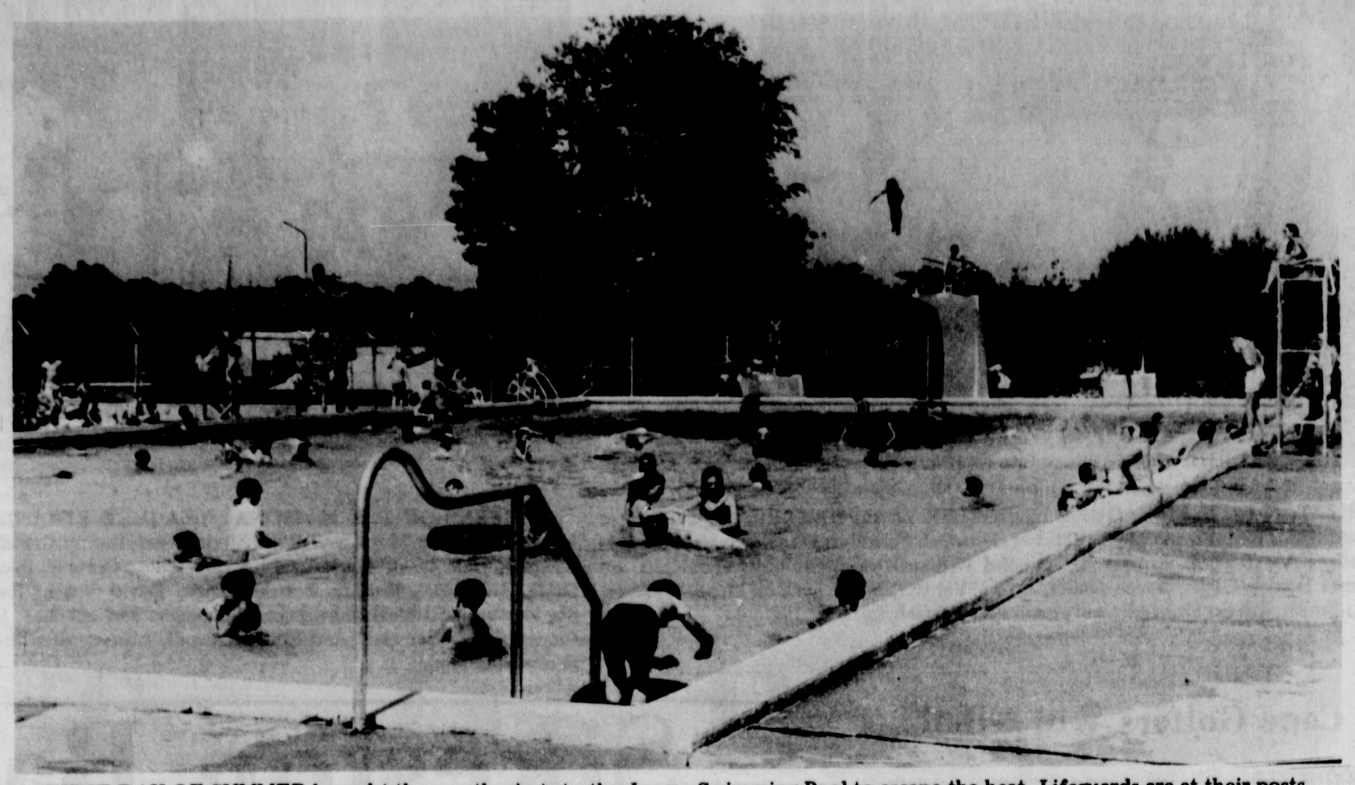

Robinson leaped 26-10¾ on his final attempt after Moore had gone 26-4¾.

Medina Court Martial Scheduled For Trial On Non-Capital Basis

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)— Capt. Ernest Medina, no longer facing the death penalty, is scheduled to go on trial July 26 on murder charges stemming from an infantry sweep through the Vietnamese village of My Lai nearly three and a half years ago.

The Army announced Friday that Medina would be court-martialed on a noncapital basis. Shortly before, Col. Kenneth Howard of Atlanta, the military judge, denied defense dismissial motions and ruled that Medina must stand trial.

Howard initially set the date as July 19 but changed it at the request of Maj. William Eckhardt, the prosecutor.

Eckhardt announced the Army's decision not to seek the death penalty. He said he had been instructed by the commanding general of the 3rd U.S. Army, Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, to treat the case as noncapital.

Medina, if convicted, still could face live imprisonment.

The 34-year-old career soldier from Montrose, Colo., was the company commander of Lt. William L. Calley's platoon. Calley was convicted earlier this year of murdering 22 civilians at My Lai and sentenced to life in prison. His case is under military review.

Medina is accused of personally killing two persons and of being responsible for the deaths of 100 others during the operation at My Lai.

Eckhardt told Howard that trying Medina on a noncapital basis would permit the Army to use written testimony in its prosecution, such testimony is inadmissable in capital cases.

Howard said Eckhardt would be allowed to go to Vietnam July 6 to take depositions from two South Vietnamese who were at My Lai with Medina's unit.

The developments in Medina's case came at the close of a six-day preliminary hearing.

Medina's civilian attorney, F. Lee Bailey, had argued during the hearing that high-ranking Army officers improperly influenced the proceedings and biased the officers responsible for an impartial evaluation of evidence. He said the Army felt public opinion demanded a trial regardless of the evidence.

Howard ruled that the Army fairly investigated the case.

"I do not find it was the overall policy of the Army to deny the accused a fair consideration of the charges against him," Howard said. "I do not find this case to be pervaded by command influence. I do not find he was to be tried regardless of the evidence."

Hoffa Renews Parole Plea

WASHINGTON (AP)— James R. Hoffa has made a new bid for freedom from federal prison but not until he shed all vestiges of office in the giant Teamsters Union he once controlled.

In an application filed late Friday by his son with the U.S. Board of Parole, Hoffa seeks reconsideration of the board's refusal last March to parole him from a 13-year term for mail fraud and jury tampering.

The timing of the move—the day after his resignation from all offices in Teamsters affiliates—heightened speculation the Nixon administration had passed word that Hoffa's only chance for early release was a complete break with the union.

Chairman George J. Reed said the parole board would consider the application for a rehearing on July 7, three days after the Teamsters are to select a new president at their Miami Beach convention.

Reed said the board can grant a rehearing only if "new and substantial information" is presented. Presumably, the new and substantial information would be that Hoffa no longer holds any office in the world's largest union. He resigned the teamsters presidency earlier this month.

Two separate decisions could confront the board. First, whether or not to grant the rehearing. That requires only two votes..

Second, if a rehearing is granted, whether or not to grant parole. This would take a majority of the board's eight members.

The former union leader has been in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison since March of 1967. When he entered, he faced only an eight-year sentence for jury tampering.

But shortly before the board was to take up his case last March, the Supreme Court reaffirmed a mail fraud conviction, which added five years to his total prison term.

Although the five-year sentence was indeterminate and technically did not affect Hoff's eligibility for parole, it undoubtedly was a factor in the board's denial at that time.

Since the March 31 decision, Hoffa has sought unsuccessfully to have a federal district court consolidate his sentences so that they would run concurrently rather than consecutively. He also sought, unsuccessfully, a Supreme Court review of his jury tampering conviction.

Joint Space Effort Conference Completed

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)— U.S. and Soviet space experts have completed a series of conferences which see the start of the first serious study of possible joint American-Russian space flights.

The 19 Soviet experts met with a group of U.S. space officials for five days' of discussions on a compatible docking system. They announced that a serious study was underway toward the possibility of Americans and Russians linking up in space.

In a joint statement Friday, they said a study on how to test a common docking system "would be based on the premise that the first such experiment might be the docking of an Apollo space craft with a manned orbital scientific station of the Salyut-type."

They added: "A subsequent experiment might be docking of a manned spacecraft of the Soyuz-type with an orbital scientific station of the Skylab-type."

The statement apparently refers to the Apollo command ship now used in the U.S. moon program and the Skylab science station scheduled for launch in 1973. Salyut is a Societ space science station now in orbit of the earth and Soyuz is a command ship used to ferry men to and from Salyut.

The statement said the two space groups would meet next in Moscow at the end of the year. The first meeting of the group was last October, also in Moscow.

The two delegations, the statement said, reached agreement on a number of questions, but that "a number of other questions require further discussion."

By far the most important development from the meeting, according to one observer, is the open willingness of both delegations to make a serious study of the possibility of joint U.S.-Soviet space flights.

Two Dexter Men Injured

DEXTER— Two traffic mishaps sent two to Dexter Memorial hospital yesterday.

At 2:20 p.m. two miles west of Dexter on highway 60, Treniss Evans Jr., 18, of Dexter, apparently fell asleep while driving an eastbound 1967 Chevrolet, the highway patrol said, and struck a westbound 1971 Oldsmobile driven by Frankie Howard, 42, of Chicago.

Evans sustained an elbow injury.

At the junction of highways 60 and business 60 in Dexter at 6:55 p.m., a 1966 Ford truck traveling east, driven by James Porter, 55, of Dexter, attempted to make a left turn at the junction, the patrol said, and was struck by an eastbound tractor-trailer unit, driven by Andrew Eller, 33, of Hutchison, N.C., when Eller attempted to pass the Ford truck.

Porter sustained a shoulder injury.

Household Goods Taken in Theft Recovered

BLOOMFIELD— Most of the household goods which were stolen last week from the home of Jenieve Jenkins of Route 1, Bell City, were recovered yesterday, Stoddard County Sheriff Edsel Edwards reported.

Two men were arrested in connection with the robbery. They were Charles Jasper Barnett, 27, and James Edward Hooper, both of the Bell City area. The men will appear in magistrate court in Stoddard County Thursday.

Items which had been taken included pictures, clothing, a washing machine and other items.

Statue Of Liberty: A National Disgrace

WASHINGTON (AP) — A century ago, a French sculptor arrived in New York City to look into the idea of building what is now the State of Liberty. To reach her today, he'd have to pass through what a congressman complains is "the valley of a garbage dump."

One hundred years almost to the day after Frederic Auguste Bartholdi stepped ashore in New York, Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., stepped on the floor of the House Thursday to tell of taking his 15-year-old daughter Kyle to see the great statue.

Leaving the island of Manhattan recently they had to pass through the garbage dump in Battery Park to board a ship to the statute, a journey he said was a "national disgrace."

"She was shocked by the sight of the mess in Battery Park and I was embarrassed to let her see that our country doesn't think any more of national shrines," Ichord said.

"The day we made our visit, more than 90 per cent of the people waiting to visit the statute were from foreign lands.

"I suggest that this only not poor public relations but it is disrespectful to our guests and gives the impression of a total lack of pride in our heritage."

Ichord said he has written National Park Service Director George Hartzog urging either Mayor John V. Lindsay or New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller be contacted on the matter.

Frankly Speaking

By Thomas F. Eagleton

CONSUMERS NEED MORE PROTECTION

I get a lot of mail from Missourians who think that consumers deserve more protection than they have been getting, and I agree.

It has been estimated that consumers lose as much as $200 billion each year through fraud, deception, and marketing inequities.

While it is true that consumers already have rights against unfair or deceptive practices, as a practical matter they cannot exercise them. It is simply too expensive for an individual consumer to bring his grievance to court.

That is why I hope we can pass the "consumer class action" bill this year. It would allow consumers with similar complaints to band together in bringing their cases to court.

Consumer Agency?

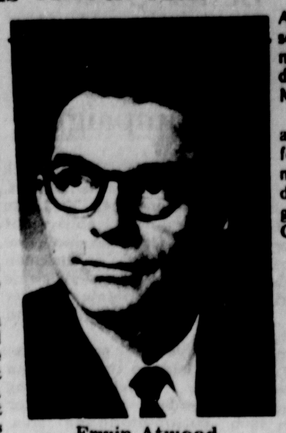

We also need to insure that the consumer's voice is clearly heard within the government. Perhaps this will require a new independent consumer unit charged with the responsibility for advising the President on consumer matters and serving as a consumer advocate in the courts. At the very least, we have to expand the powers of the Federal Trade Commission.

Equally important is the need to set a "floor" under warranties, requiring manufacturers who want to warranty their products to meet minimum requirements. Too often consumers take products home only to find that the most basic defects escape through a loophole in the warranty.

Over the next few months, the Senate will be faced with other consumer questions as well. Do consumers have a right to know what ingredients are contained in food products? Do they have a right to have perishable foods marked as to the last day they can safely be bought? Should they have easy access to a "unit price" for foods sold in a variety of packagings?

I intend to support responsible legislation designed to protect the consumer, as I have in the past.

Professor Talks About Ads

Erwin Atwood

CARBONDALE — Dr. L. Erwin Atwood, associate professor of journalism at Souther Illinois University spoke at the summer meeting of the Ilimoky Ad Club.

He spoke on "People Don't Discriminate Between News and Advertising." He said that women evaluate advertising as good and bad and that is good because women have 80 per cent of the wealth. He described the kind of women who like advertising and the kind who dislike it.

Dr. Atwood said that in a recent survey it was pointed out that 95 per cent of the people are of the opinion that you can believe advertisements. In another survey to find out which is more important, news or advertising, it proved to be equal.

Ballots will be mailed after Thursday for election of officers.

Earl Jewell, club president and advertising director of the Sikeston Standard, appointed a committee to draft a new set of by-laws and establish objectives of the Club.

The group met at the new Journalism Department of Southern Illinois University and went on a tour of the department and the Egyptian, the college newspaper.

Those attending from Sikeston were Jewell, Allen Blanton, Harvey Cooper, Marietta Ashley and Kathie Arnold.

Market Data on Line

JEFFERSON CITY . . . A toll - free telephone number may make the difference between profit or loss for a good number of Missouri farmers this year.

By dialing a WATS number, Missouri farmers can obtain Missouri Farm Bureau's "Market Line'. for complete market information, relates MFBF Marketing Director Glen Peterson. Peterson and Market Analyst Toby Wright will handle the calls and give the latest information on livestock and grain markets.

"What we hope to do is give the livestock producer the total market picture," Peterson says. "This means up -to -the -minute markets as soon as the reports are gathered. Market analysis - - the reasons for a market going up or down, and how long to expect conditions affecting the market to remain - will be one of our most important efforts," Peterson adds.

"Grain marketing information will be gathered from teletype and contacts at the KANSAS City and St. Louis Boards of Trade, and country elevators," Peterson reports.

Farmers wanting to sell grain can get help through the "Market Line". "Call our WATS number, tell us what you have to sell, allow us time to get bids, and await our report," is how Peterson outlines the steps to take to sell grain through the MFBF information system.

Also available through the MFBF "Market Line" is the advice of an expert commodity broker, Peterson announces. A branch office of Hertz Commodities -- the largest trading house in the U.S. for live cattle futures -- is based in the "Market Line" office.

To obtain the toll -free WATS number, Peterson suggests farmers contact their county Farm Bureau office.

Better Cotton Yields Goal Of Campaign

CARUTHERSVILLe — Jack Tipton, Caruthersville, and Dr. S. H. Bodenhamer, associate director of the college of agriculture for extension, have been appointed co-chairmen for Missouri in a Beltwide campaign to obtain "better cotton yields for profits and markets" in 1971.

Objective is to increase cotton yields to the maximum profitable level, utilizing recommended practices for each cotton-producing area, and to improve producer income. The goal also is to stabilize cotton's current competitive position and build a base for market expansion.

Special industry-government task forces are being set up in 14 major cotton-producing states with the over-all drive coordinated by the National Cotton Council and the Extension Services.

The effort was launched at a press conference in Washington earlier this month, called by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin and attended by National Cotton Council President C. R. Sayre of Greenwood, Miss. They pointed out that the following factors stress the need for maximum profitable cotton production:

(1) This is a decisive year due to a critical supply situation, (2) 1970-71 offtake is projected at 11-½ million bales as compared with 10-¾ million in 1970, and (3) the projected carryover of not more than 4-½ million bales is the lowest in 20 years.

They also explained that weather problems in major areas of the Belt have created concern over the 1971 crop, posing the threat of an inadequate supply. On the other hand, Mr. Sayre noted, the strong demand presents an unusual opportunity for grower profit.

Time to Sample Corn for Analysis

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

PORTAGEVILLE — Testing growing plants is a relatively new and accurate method of determining levels of major and minor elements present in the plants. The Area Soil Testing Laboratory at Portageville is offering this service to farmers again this year.

Any crop can be sampled. Corn is the first one to sample in our area. Corn planted in April is now ready to be sampled. You should begin sampling when you see the first silks emerging. Follow these steps in order to get a good sample. (1) When to Sample — when silks begin to emerge but before they dry. (2) Part of Plant — take the entire "ear" or "shot" leaf. Take leaf from top ear if stalk has two ears.

(3) How to Sample — remove one leaf per plant from 15 to 20 plants selected at random in the field. Break off leaf at base. Do not include portions of leaf sheath. Be sure hands are clean.

(4) Care and Handling of Sample - start with a clean bag. A kraft paper bag is ideal for collecting, drying and marking samples. It must be clean. New, unused bags are available at most grocers. The 10 to 12 lb. sizes are satisfactory for corn.

(5) Carry an Open Bag - drop the leaves in the open bag as they are removed from plants. Leave them loose to allow for air drying. Do not wad or tie the leaves into a bundle. Heating and molding may occur. Do not use a plastic bag.

(6) Leave the Bag Open - do not close the bag after the sample has been collected. Take sample immediately to your University Extension Center, Area Soil Testing Laboratory, Portageville, or air dry and then deliver or mail it.

It is also a good idea to take a soil sample from same area as plant sample. The results of both plant and soil will help in making fertilizer recommendations for next year's crop.

Every farmer should take at least one sample from his best corn field and one from his problem field. Tissue testing will tell you if adequate plant nutrients are available for maximum yields. You can get more information about plant testing by contacting your local University Extension Center. Request a copy of MU Guide 9131, "Sampling Plant Tissue and Soil for Analysis". Check with your local fertilizer dealer. He will probably have copies of the guide and information sheets for samples.

Unemployment Rates Remain Unfavorable

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — More Missourians had jobs in May than were working in April, but still unemployment was 5.1 per cent — exactly the rate of strike-torn May, 1970.

Herman Julien, director of the State Division of Employment Security, said today the reason for the remaining high rate of unemployment is unfavorable economic conditions.

"This year, although unemployment is decreasing, economic conditions have not favored a rapid expansion of employment," he said.

The total number of unemployed Missourians dropped by 3,700 for a total of 104,800 jobless in May. The dtop from April to May brought the state unemployment rate to the estimated 5.1 per cent.

Missouri workers earned more on jobs in May than in April. The division reported average weekly earnings for manufacturing production rose $1.07 in May, up from April's $140.34.

Big Feedlots Must Register

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri feedlots must apply for permit to continue operations by July 1. Only large operations of 1,000 head or more capacity must meet this requirement. According to the Environmental Protection Agency.

The Missouri Cattlemen's Asocition obtained this information Thursday, June 17, from the E.P.A. Regional Office in Kansas City. Responsibility for making the application is upon the feedlot operators. Failure to so this could result in litigation ending in fines and penalties. According to John Robinson, Executive Director of the Cattlemen's group, the E.P.A. is serious in their efforts to maintain and improve our environmental quality.

The 1,000 head feedlot application requirement is the first of a continuing program which will eventually bring all of our nations feeding industry under environmental quality control. Feedlot operators who fall into the 1,000 head capacity or over should contact immediately Mr. Robinson at the M.C.A. office in Jefferson City, the State Water Pollution Control Board, Jefferson City, or their local Corp of Engineers District Office for additional information.

Upon making the application, the E.P.A. may determine that necessary precautions have been taken and a permit will not be necessary. Those operations where no pollution control measures have been installed; it is probable that a permit to continue operations until control measures can be implemented will be required. Robinson further noted that if the applications reveal that qualifications are met, or permits are issued, this will give feedlot operations some measures of protection against future pollution liabilitysuits and litigations. The M.C.A.'s Executive officer urged all feedlot operators falling into the 1,000 head capacity to contact the association immediately for details about the applications and permits.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Steps are being taken to detect the presence of southern corn leaf blight and other corn diseases which might invade the state this year. This monitaring program was planned and is being conducted by a special committee on Southern Corn Leaf Blight from the University of Missouri at Columbia in cooperation with Extension area agronomy spceialists through out the state.

A network of 20 corn disease monitoring plots has been established in scattered locations through out the state. Each plot consists of two completed sets of test material planted at two different dates. Each planting includes 10 carefully selected corn varieties. These varieties were chosen for either susceptibility or resistance to the various corn diseases on order to provide a full range of test material. The plots are in regular corn fields and will be handled normally along with the rest of the field in which each is located. The plots will be checked each week for southern, northern, and yellow corn leaf blights, seedling blight, eyespot, Stewart's disease, and maise dwarf mosaic by area agronomy specialists or plant pathologists and reports will be sent to the University for computer analysis. Information obtained from this study will then be made available to newspapers and radio and television stations at least once a week.

Monitoring stations were established in this general area in Bollinger and Pemiscott Counties and at the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville.

Researchers believe that these plots will provide short range warnings as well as important long range study data that will help plant breeders in the future.

In addition to the state monitoring program, Missouri, along with several other states, will be cooperating with several federal services in an experimental corn blight watch. These services include the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Laboratory for Application of Remote Sensing (LARS).

A total of 200 sample sites-each approximately one mile wide and eight miles long-are to be monitored over the corn belt. Color infra-red photographs will be made of the sites from high altitude by NASA aircraft on a bi-weekly basis. The colors on the film will be interpreted and catagorized into classes on the basis of the presence or absence of blight, and if present, the degree of infection-slight, moderate or severe. Statistical information will be obtained and studied. This multi-state watch can be considered an experiment as nothing of this nature has been attempted in agriculture previously. The final analysis of this study will not be made until after the final flights in September.

Stability Key to Cotton Marketing

CARUTHERSVILLE— J. R. Hutchison Jr., of Caruthersville, executive vice president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, today acknowledged that he did indeed say cotton prices were "too high."

However, he said his statement was not with respect to the price paid farmers for cotton, but the pricing that has taken place in the futures market by speculators.

The statement, released May 26 by the organization, has stirred up a hornet's nest of protest from cotton producers and other farm organizations involved with cotton.

"My reference to cotton being priced too high was in relation to fluctuations in the cotton market, not toward the price being paid the farmer," Hutchison said.

"As far as I am concerned, the price of cotton can't get too high to suit me—so long as it's stable and the market remains."

He continued that stability is the kay to the situation rather than price and it was the present unstable and rapidly rising futures market for cotton of which he was critical.

"The cotton farmer has to realize the needs of his market, the textile mills. While they would like to see lower prices for cotton, the thing they fear most is rapid fluctuations in the price rather than high prices.

"They want a dependable supply and a dependable price upon which to make their plans. This is the one area in which synthetic competitors of cotton have a real advantage.

"With foreign competition, the textile mills have a hard enough time worrying about keeping production costs down without having to worry about guessing right on what the price of cotton will be in the future."

Hutchison said the price of cotton paid to the farmer has little bearing on the price of clothing to the consumer, so the actual price level paid to farmers is not the issue.

"In this respect I fully agree that higher, not lower, prices are needed for cotton farmers. But we want the price stabilized at a level at which a cotton farmer can make a living, not just up this year and way down the next."

Hutchison said in his statement that the 1967 prices of cotton rose far above the level that textile mills expected and they still had contracts to fulfill.

"Naturally they got a sour taste in their mouth over that," he said. "In such a situation it was the speculator rather than the farmer or textile mill that made the money."

With fear of low production in Texas, Arizona, and other cotton producing areas, Hutchison said it looks as if the 1971 might be a repeat of 1967 and it was about this that he was sounding a warning.

"What is needed is legislation calling for enough stockpile of cotton to afford stability in the market. Futhermore, we need something like the Federal Reserve Board — removed from politics — to administer the supply.

Hutchison said the textile mills are not particularly friendly toward cotton, but they are the market and their needs must be taken into consideration if cotton farmers are to retain the market.

Fluctuations in the price of cotton, he said, simply provide the textile mills an excuse to make greater and greater uses of synthetics.

"The buyer for a textile mill will tell you the price of cotton is too high. That's his job. But talk to the top man and he'll frequently tell you he doesn't care what the price is, so long as it's stable and dependable.

"My reference to the price of cotton being too high was a reference to the rapid increase in price on the futures market that creates confusion and fear on the part of textile manufacturers.

"If the price went way up and stayed there—where it could be depended upon by both the farmer and the manufacturer, I'd be clapping my hands instead of wringing them.

"But under the present system I'm afraid the uncertainty will mean a shift by the mills to more dependably priced synthetics—a loss of markets for cotton farmers that may be difficult to win back.

"The mills don't want to operate on a small margin of profit all year long and then end up with a loss because they guessed wrong on the price of their raw materials.

Farm Competition Keen Says Undersecretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under Secretary of Agriculture J. Phil Campbell says most urban people think farmers are wards of the government and that they do not work under the capitalistic free enterprise system.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he said.

"Farmers have always had to compete with more fellow producers of any specific commodity then their counterparts outside of agriculture," Campbell said.

The under secretary said when the American public learns this basic fact, there will be understanding and appreciation of the necessity and importance of Agriculture Department programs.

"It's an economic fact that farmers are expected by American consumers to produce a surplus. I seriously doubt there are any consumers in the United States who want farmers to produce a shortage," he said.

Campbell said that agricultural shortages would be advantageous for the few persons in the economy who would have a surplus to sell on a short market, and also would be highly beneficial to farm producers.

He pointed out that farm production is not nearly as manageable as in industries where the production line can be closed off when the market demands are met.

"Once agricultural production is placed in operation in order to produce for the demands of the market, it continues to produce to the point of a surplus," Campbell said in a statment for the Mississippi State Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Service at Biloxi.

"It should be obvious to consumers and producers alike that agriculture's constant overproduction and the delivery of this overproduction to the market place makes it extremely difficult-and often impossible-to obtain a price from the market that adequately covers the cost of production, much less return a reasonable profit," he said.

Campbell said the Nixon administration does not believe in cheap food. "We believe that the farmer should receive and the housewife should expect to pay food prices in the market place that will allow the farmer to stay in business and maintain a satisfactory standard of living for his family."

Cool Weather Bootheel Prospect

by
Leonard F. Hand
Farm Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE— Weather patterns for the 30-day period ending Mid-July are expected to produce below normal temperature averages and near normal rain totals over the Missouri Bootheel.

High pressure systems are expected to push cooler air southward into the mid-Mississippi valley more frequently than during the first half of June. This will also provide for increased drying potential with lower relative humidities than are found in the Maritime Tropical air flowing northward out of the Gulf of Mexico.

Heaviest concentrations of rainfall will accompany low pressure centers passing well to the north and west of the region. The opportunity for thunderstorms moving with and developing ahead of cool fronts represents the major source of moisture for Southeast Missouri. Distribution of scattered activity maintains prospects for considerable variability in soil water levels over the Bootheel similar to conditions that have developed in the past two weeks.

Daily forecasts, supplemented by the extended outlooks, will give farmers a 5 day projection of weather trends upon which to schedule operations to take best advantage of open weather. The wheat harvest is being slowed in some areas by wet soils that maintain high humidity within the plant zone. Wheat straw toughened by moisture has interfered with threshing, a situation that will improve rather slowly until increased winds and drier air reach the area.

Soybeans planted immediately behind wheat will have the benefit of amply soil moisture for germination, rains so far in June should have replenished sub-soil reservoirs that have depleted somewhat before wheat ripened.

Shower patterns should be watched for effects upon the upcoming harvest of early peaches and the need to maintain spray schedules in orchards. A second cutting of alfalfa is near due and field curing of fescue in the hill country will require a close watch of the 5 day trends.

Some corn is already silking and that crop will be reaching peak demand for water. Both the progress of the season and the accelerating growth stages of crops increase the pace of water extraction from soils. During this period we usually find potential evapotranspiration exceeding rainfall by 2 inches or more. As root systems move downward, that deficity can be made up in most soils by eater availabel there. However, depletion of that reserve will make trends that emerge by mid-season more critical in terms of eventual need for supplemental irrigation.

Potential water use by early corn from June 14 through July 18 is about 9.88 inches, for late corn 9.64 inches, for early cotton 7.47 inches, late cotton 5.08, soybeans about 4.59 inches.

Crops seldom use water at this potential rate in the humid climate of Southeast Missouri, according to data compiled at the Office for Agriculture. So far this season, water use has run just about 50 per cent of potential. Weather factors should increase this percentage during the period ending mid-July. Estimates released twice weekly during the season will indicate the amount of water extracted from soils by individual crops. These will be made available to radio stations over the NOAA Weather Wire.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole during the period Mid-June through Mid-July is 3.64 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Caruthersville 3.46 inches; Doniphan 4.18 inches; New Madrid 3,89 inches; Poplar Bluff 3.75 inches; Dexter 3,79 inches; Morehouse 3.53 inches; Parma 3.76 inches and Sikeston 3.64 inches.

Short term averages for other points:

Just in Time for the summer tourist avalanche, a sight designed to help visitors see the sights has been added to London's attractions. One of the famed red, double-decker buses, above, has been converted into a mobile restaurant, "The Upper Crust." The top-deck eatery, below, can seat 24 who can enjoy a four-course champagne lunch while touring the historic landmarks of the British capital. Bottom deck serves as the kitchen.

Amphibian Camper

is the contribution to the booming camping movement of a James F. Taylor of Raleigh, N.C., who has designed a "Trailable Houseboat," a vehicle that converts from a camper on land (left) to a runabout (lower left) or catamaran houseboat (model above) on water powered by a 25-h.p. motor. A compact six feet by 21 for traveling, it opens up to 14 by 21 for land or water use. Working largely in aluminum, Taylor received a commission for the design in Aluminum Company of America's Ventures in Design program.

MARTIAL MUSIC HATH CHARMS for the friendly dolphin, at least for one by the name of Jethro who not only comes to attention but plants a buss on the bugle of Marine Cpl. Karl Mueller. Jethro is a star attraction at Sea World in Aurora, Ohio, where Mueller and other members of the 4th Marine Aircraft Wing Drum and Bugle Team from Glenview, Ill., took part in season's flag-raising ceremonies. That's The Law

Shots at Gun Law Miss Mark

To curb those with gunning little ways, a state law was enacted that required identification cards for anyone who wanted to purchase a rifle or shotgun. Immediately, Dead-Eye Ruppert and a group of his fellow sharpshooters took exception to the statute.

Whether they were small game hunters or big game hunters, they agreed unanimously that the new law infringed upon their rights and hastened to court to have it declared illegal.

"The Constitution clearly gives us the right to bear arms," they protested. "And, a state cannot taketh away what the Constitution giveth. With all the red tape and inconvenience created by the new law," they pointed out, "the effect is to frustrate a person's desire to purchase a rifle and illegally impedes him from doing so."

"Nonsense," responded a state official. "While it may require the completion of a few forms, the new law may help turn up a few crackpots who shouldn't have a rifle. Duck the identification cards now, and we may all have to duck some bullets later."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you shoot down the gun control law?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that under a state's police power, the common good takes precedence over private rights: that our basic freedom may be curtailed if sufficient reason exists for such curtailment. From the day we are born, noted the judge, when a birth certificate is filed to the day we die when official certification thereof must be recorded, we spend the intervening years obtaining one different type of license after another. These burdens we assume for the good that flows therefrom. There is no basic difference in a requirement to obtain a gun purchaser's identification card.

(Based upon a 1968 New Jersey Superior Court, A.D., Decision)

East Prairie To Celebrate Independence Day

EAST PRAIRIE — The July 4th weekend attractions in East Prairie are shaping up. The parade, a joint effort of Community Betterment and the Chamber of Commerce, will launch the events, beginning at 10:30 Saturday morning. The parade is to have a sesquicentennial theme and thus far, five clubs have let it be known they will have floats entered. Also the East Prairie High school band will march, the usual number of horses will be present, decorated bicycles, a few wagons drawn by teams carrying Sesquicentennial Belles.

It appears there is going to be a good parade so be sure and contact Mrs. Carey Johnson before Monday, June 28 if you or your club wish to enter the parade. Those entering will be contacted next week for their place in the lineup.

Among the activities planned are:

Job's Daughters will have a fireworks stand across the street from the MASONIC Hall at the corner of Lincoln and Pine. The stand will be opened at noon Monday, June 28 and will continue to sell fireworks through the 4th.

The Masonic Lodge will have a barbecue stand across from the Masonic Hall all day Saturday, July 3rd.

Saturday night at 8 p.m. a street dance in downtown East Prairie will be held. This is sponsored by the East Prairie Lions Club.

At dark Saturday night, the fireworks display will be at the new football grounds of the East Prairie High School.

The DeMolays will sell sandwiches and cold drinks during the fireworks show.

The Spur and Saddle Club will have a horse show on Sunday, July 4th at the Sam Jones Park. The show will begin at 1:30 p.m. Entries will come from Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Arkansas for the 18 scheduled events.

First place will have a trophy and first place ribbon. Second, third, fourth and fifth places will have ribbons. $135 has been added to the purse. There are 30 members in the Spur and Saddle Club who are the sponsors.

Leading Republican Sees Nixon Defeat In Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading conservative Republican is telling her supporters a poll shows President Nixon can't be re-elected in 1972 and should bow out in favor of California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly, a biographer of 1964 GOP nominee Barry Goldwater, says in her June newsletter a poll she took indicates "grassroots Republicans believe Nixon is certain to lose the next election."

The newsletter also says that, if Nixon bows out, Reagan would be an overwhelming favorite of GOP conservatives with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew a weak second. It adds that, if Nixon runs, 72 per cent of those polled want him to keep Agnew on the ticket.

Recent elections in California, Florida and Missouri are cited as evidence conservative Republicans might back a Democrat in 1972 rather than a Republican they dislike.

Mrs. Schlafly, whose own effort to win election to the House from a downstate Illinois district was unsuccessful. Says her poll is "the most comprehensive and scientific in-depth survey of grass-roots Republican opinion ever taken."

It was based on home interviews with 3,423 people, a sample twice as large as that used in the Harris and Gallup polls.

It shows that 32 per cent of those who said they voted for Nixon in 1968 would not again vote for him, even if the only alternatives are voting for Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine or Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, or staying home.

Twenty - five per cent of the 1968 Nixon voters said they made a mistake. And 37 per cent of those in the poll said they found practically no difference between the Nixon administration and one that might have been headed by defeated 1968 Democratic presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey.

The people surveyed, Mrs. Schlafly said, "are the people who elected President Nixon in 1968 and without whom Nixon cannot hope to be reelected in 1972."

The poll showed Republicans think Nixon would carry or is leading in only 13 states that have 83 electoral votes, and won't carry or is trailing in 32 states with 416 electoral votes. Seven states with 39 electoral votes were rated tossups. A total of 270 electoral votes are required to win.

Without Nixon in the race, the poll showed 60 per cent favor Reagan and 23 per cent Agnew.

The Boston Bruins had four men who scored 105 or more points in National Hockey League games last season. They were Phil Esposito (152), Bobby Orr (139), John Bucyk (116) and Ken Hodge (105).

Court Issues Subpoenas Into Policeman's Death

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)— Subpoenas were issued today for television and newspaper reporters, a newspaper executive and two police officials to appear at a hearing Thursday on coverage of a policeman's death.

Stephen Jones of the Oklahoma Civicl Liberties Union has asked the district court to restrict officials from commenting and the news media from reporting on the shooting death of patrolman Michael Ratikan last week.

Jones represents Jerry Lewis Fowler, a 24-year-old Oklahoma City man charged with murder in Ratikan's death.

A hearing is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Thursday in district court.

Subpoenaes were issued for the news directors of television stations KWTV and WKY in Oklahoma City and KOTV in Tulsa, Oklahoma City Times reporter Marv Goddard, Daily Oklahoman and Times circulation manager Helge Holm, Dist. Atty. Curtis P. Harris and Police Chief Wayne Lawson.

The subpoena received by KWTV directed the station to bring "copies of all films used in the broadcast over television relating to the death of officer Michael Ratikan and-or the investigation of Jerry Lewis Fowler and any interviews with the honorable Curtis Harris..."

Iowa Commission Adjourns Hearings

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)— The Iowa Commerce Commission Wednesday adjourned until "sometime in fall" a hearing on whether to grant a 15 per cent rate increase to Union Electric Co. of St. Louis.

The utility, which provides electricty to some 52,000 persons southeast Iowa, cited increasing costs Wednesday as the major reason for seeking the rate increase.

James Huiskamp, a lawyer representing the Keokuk School District protested that the proposed rate boost is revolutionary.

Huiskamp claimed the increase is too much for a company that operates without competition.

A company witness, executive vice-president W. E. Cornelius, told the commission hearing that the firm's rate of return, profits and dividends all increased last year.

Cornelius added, however, that the company has projected decreases for 1971 unless it is granted high rates in Iowa, Missouri and Illinois.

The higher rates for Union Electric customers went into effect in February of 1970 after the company posted a bond to cover refunds if the commission deies a permanent increase.

Union Electric serves the Iowa communites of Madison, Donnellson, Franklin, Hillsboro, Houghton, Keokuk, Stockport, Salem, Montrose and St. Paul.

The proposed 15 per cent increase would that the average householder's monthy bill would increase from $12.25 to $14.08, company records show.

Widow Files Damage Suit In Truck Explosion Death

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The widow of John Galt, a Tri State Motors truck driver killed in the explosion of his dynamite-laden truck last fall on Interstate Highway 44 near Springfield, has filed a $50,000 damage suit in Greene County Circuit Court.

The suit names as defendants Frank Fitzsimmons, international president of the Teamsters Union; Francis Martha, international executive secretary; James Hoffa, immediate past president; William W. Kitts, president of Local 823, and Ray Krutsinger, secretary-treasurer of Local 823.

The union was on strike against Tri State Motors of Joplin, Mo., between Sept. 14 and Sept. 30, 1970. The petition contends the officers and agents of the union "by their sentiments and actions caused Bobby Lee Shuler and Gerald Bowden to believe they could and should assist" the union by discouraging Tri State employes from driving trucks for the company.

Shuler was sentenced Wednesday to 99 years in prison for second degree murder. Bowden received a 10 year sentence.

Veterans Against The War Plan Regional Meetings

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Western Missouri and Kansas Region of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War is planning a series of antiwar actions for the Independence Day weekend in Kansas City, John M. Upton, the organization's regional coordinator said today.

Upton said the demonstrators will conduct a series of mock sears-and-destroy missions in various parts of the city July 4 to dramatize their opposition to the war.

Speeches and a candlelight march are planned that evening.

"We are trying to do all this very conservatively," said Upton, adding that the group has obtained a permit for the march and a campsite at the Liberty Memorial.

He said he had no idea how many veterans would attend.

Portageville Will Celebrate July 4

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Jaycees encourage all citizens in the Portageville area to celebrate the Fourth of July here at the City Park. There is plenty of parking space and the neighbors don't mind the clean activities that goes on thru the day and evening.

Among their activities: Dance, Picnic, Barbecue, Carnival, Fireworks, Good Fellowship, with the idea in mind of making this event (as in the old days), one whereby, old friends meet, visit, after traveling many miles from their old home town. One Jaycee member remarked, "what could be better?"

The Dance is scheduled for July 3 and the Barbecue will start at 1 p.m. July 4, at the Picnic. Several stands have been planned which include a dunking stand, dart stand, fishing stand, zingo stand. They will be selling Barbecue Pork and Chicken, and will have sandwiches and soft drinks.

During the afternoon and evening Gift Certificates will be given away and as a grand prize a color television set.

Plans are to have a $50(fireworks display. Merchants are helping the Jaycees in financing the fireworks display.

Starting July 6 the Razorback Amusement Show will be here, located at the Union Farmers Gin Yard. The Carnival will open on the 6th of July and run through the 10th. This show is the cleanest and most modern of performances in the Portageville area.

Purse Stolen, Man Arrested

CHARLESTON— Paul Johnson, 25, of Charleston, was arrested at 3 a.m. Friday on a felony charge of burglary according to Deputy Sheriff Everett Holley.

Johnson is accused of entering the home of Tillman Moore, 519 Olive St., through the back door and stealing a purse belonging to Mrs. Moore. No money was taken.

Johnson is being held in lieu of a $1,000 bond. He will appear in magistrate court Thursday.

Blind Newsman Hired For Television

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)— When you first watch Paul Caputo reading the news over WWLP-TV, you wonder why he is wearing dark glasses.

If you watch carefully, you see his arms are moving back and forth and then you realize why— he is reading the news in Braille.

WWLP believes Caputo is the first blind newsmen on U.S. television.

Blind since birth, Caputo, 26, joined the station's news staff this month, with a helping hand from modern technology and his seeing eye dog, Lupo.

"I have the feeling more people are watching me than are listening to me," he said in an interview. Viewers have accepted him and congratulated the station for taking the gamble.

Caputo takes notes by tape recording interviews on a pocket-size recorder. For on-the-air material, he uses a braille typewriter.

Caputo was a 1969 graduate of American International College, where he was a disc jockey on its FM station, Caputo has been a ham radio operator for 11 years.

He telephoned WWLP owner William L. Putnam last November and asked if there were any openings.

"I didn't mention my visual tatus to him, since so many people tend to stereotype blind people and not give them a chance," Caputo said.

But Putnam was not put off by Caputo's blindness when he came for an interview and promised him a try at a job.

It was contingent on research at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, where a team was developing a high-speed braille embossing machine, known as "Braillemboss," which can be connected to newswire teleprinters to produce instant reports in braille.

Caputo reads the braille copy with one hand while finding the next line with the other.

"The first time, I couldn't read, I couldn't think, and I couldn't talk," he said.

"Then one day, Bill Putnam told me, 'You're going on the air tonight.' "

Caputo came across cool and calm, and has been on the air Tuesday and Thursday nights ever since.

Church Property Put On Tax Rolls

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Shawnee County Assessor George Schnellbacher said today he is putting property of the Presbyterian Church on the tax rolls of the county.

Schnellbacher contends Presbyterian Church properties are no longer being used exclusively for religious purposes because nationally the church had voted to contribute $10,000 to the legal defense fund of Angela Davis, Negro militant and an avowed Communist.

Shnellbacher said he had written the state Boardof Tax Appeals concerning his authority to take action.

A representative of the board said in reply it "is of the opinion that you have an adequate remedy to cover this situation" and said Schnellbacher should exercise the authority granted him.

The tax appeals representative cited a statute giving the county assessor authority to revoke a property tax exemption.

The statute also gives the property owner procecures for protesting the action.

Schnellbacher said he is certain Presbyterian Church officials will appeal when he puts the property back on the tax rolls.

Presbyterian church officials had no comment immediately.

Boy Shot, Pistol Packing Trio Sought

Police are searching for three men who went through the Sunset addition last night waving a gun.

The trio is suspected of shooting 15-year-old Sherman Bonds as he walked on North street.

A complaint was received by police that the trio was driving in the area in a green Chrysler displaying a pistol in a threatening manner. They spotted what they thought were the suspect's car and chased it but the car eluded them.

Later, the Bonds youth was shot near the West Gate intersection on North street. The boy told officers he was walking on the sidewalk when a green Chrysler pulled up behind him and he heard a shot.

He said he started running and then a second shot was fired and a bullet struck him in the thigh.

The boy said he ran to a nearby car and the unidentified driver took him to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Wearing 4 Hats Breeze For Pearson

By SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

WYATT — Being on call 24-hours a day in four lines of duties has become a way of life for John "Bud" Pearson, City Marshal, fire chief, street and water commissioner of Wyatt and a deputy sheriff of Mississippi county.

Pearson, 48, is originally from East Prairie. He has served in Wyatt since February of 1968. Prior to that he lived in Charleston and was night police chief five of the eight years he was on the force.

"This is a smaller town, I know everyone and they know me," Pearson said. "It's like working with one big family, I know what to expect from each one and I must say that I have had very little trouble from anyone during my three years here."

"Shucks, I like it down here" was his reply when asked if he preferred the smaller town.

Pearson's duties as marshall include patroling the streets and keeping the peace.

"We've had a few speeders but it doesn't take long to get that stopped," he said.

Out of towners are sure to attest to that fact if their judgment is based on facial expression, Pearson has the typical policeman's expression of sternness, quickly changed by a smile and a keen sense of humor. Salt and pepper hair, horn rimmed glasses, mustache (grown for the sesquicentennial) and the ever present cigar would make him recognizable even out of uniform.

He is proud of his record of solving all but one of the breakins which have occurred since he has been in Wyatt. The most frequent offenses are disorderly conduct and these are not too serious, Pearson said. Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons are the busiest times and since last December he has had a deputy, Eddie Clark, to assist him in his police work.

"Only had one person to knock me down since I've been here and that was a woman," Pearson said with a laugh. "She was driving drunk and after I got her out of the car she caught me off guard and Pow, she let me have it." "She was a big one but I handled her."

Pearson is chief of the six-member volunteer fire department, keeps the truck in top working condition and holds fire drills every Tuesday night.

As street commissioner, his main duty is to see that repairs are made and he operates the road grader. Duties under the water commissioner category include repairs to water lines and collection of deliquent water bills.

"We furnish water to the truck stops out at the junction and as it always happens, last winter on the coldest night we had, I got a call here at home about 2 a.m. from the junction saying they didn't have any water," he said.

"One pump wasn't working and the other was stuck and by the time I got the tanks filled it was time for breakfast and time to go on duty as marshal." "That's just part of the job though and most of the time its peaceful and quiet and you need a little excitement every now and then to keep you on your toes."

Pearson and his wife, Wanda, have three daughters; Wanda Lee, who graduated from high school last year; Carla Mae, 15 and Yvonne Gale, 12.

When asked if he had any hobbies he replied:

"Don't have the time anymore, I was raised in the woods so to speak and used to go hunting every chance I got, now that will have to wait till I retire I guess and I'm not planning on that any ways soon."

Recuperating now from surgery for the removal of a kidney stone and two ribs broken during the surgery, Pearson is anxious to return to work, hopefully within a month.

"If it wasn't for these ribs I'd feel fine, don't that beat all, getting your ribs broke on an operating table; the doctor thought it was kinda funny but I be danged if I do, why they hurt worse than the incision," he chuckled.

Broken ribs and all it's a sure bet that Pearson will return to work patrolling the streets, grading streets, mending water lines, fighting fires and in general keeping the peace for the good guys of Wyatt.

Ellsberg Charged On Pentagon Leak Of Secret Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government told the Supreme Court today that its ability to function has been challenged by publication of the secret Pentagon war study.

Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold, opening an historic argument before the court, said the constitutional issues raised by the publication of parts of the study by the New York Times and Washington Post go beyond the issue of free speech.

"It also involves the fundamental and important right of the government to function, Griswold said.

As the rare Saturday court session began, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the court had denied the government's request that a portion of the argument be held in secret so that the classified documents involved could be discussed.

However, Burger said he and two other justices would examine secret briefs prepared by both the government and the two newspapers before the court made a ruling. He gave no indication when that ruling might come.

As the court extended temporary publication bans Friday on The Times and The Post, two other papers released some of the documents, and a federal probe of how they were leaked resulted in a warrant for the arrest of former Pentagon and State Department analyst Daniel Ellsberg.

Ellsberg had been identified by a former Times reporter as the person who gave that newspaper the secret study of U.S. involvement in the Indochina portions of which were published by six other news organizations after a Times series on the 47-volume document was halted by a circuit court order.

The high court agreed to hear the case in a 5 to 4 vote in which the dissenting justices favored allowing both newspapers to print the documents without a hearing. Both papers were allowed to publish parts of the study today but decided not to do so until the court ruled.

However, the Los Angeles Times continued today a series on the Pentagon papers it began Thursday and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch on Friday became the most recent paper to report on the secret study.

The government's week-old forecast that publication of the study would damage U.S. diplomatic relations with friendly powers appeared Friday to have been strictly limited, with only Britain expressing official concern. Other governments were reportedly disturbed but not to the point of formal protest.

The Los Angeles Times said in today's editions that the turning point decision in American involvement in Vietnam— deployment of 3,500 Marines at Da Nang on March 8, 1965—was made by the Johnson administration "without much planning."

"The landing of the Marines at Da Nang was a watershed event in the history of U.S. involvement in Vietnam," The Times quoted from a part of the secret study it said was previously unpublished. "It represented a major decision made without much fanfare."

Gen Maxwell D. Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and in 1965 the U.S. ambassador in Saigon, had "deep reservations" about the Marine deployment, The Times quoted the study as saying.

However, it said, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then U.S. commander in Vietnam, "saw in the deployment of the Marines the beginning of greater things to come" and thus backed the move.

Ellsberg's arrest was ordered on charges he had unauthorized possession of the document and failed to return it.

PARIS (AP)— In a dozen West European countries, more than a score of minorities are trying to assert themselves.

They are nationalists, sparatists, autonomists, regionalists or those who are culturally obsessed. Few make headlines abroad, except the Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland. But motivations are much the same everywhere--race, culture, language and economic status.

They tend to split into factions. The IRA wants to unite all of Ireland but a splinter faction wants to do it violently and at once.

The Welsh and Scottish have activists too. Both have increased their vote in recent years, but have nevertheless lost their parliamentary seats.

Hopes for a Welsh nation still live, but only barely in a practical sense. The Welsh National party wants political action within the existing framework. The Welsh Languare Society, whose activists tear down English-language road signs, wants a cultural rebellion.

For sheer numbers, France leads with the Bretons, Pasques, Alsace-Lorraine regionalists, Corsicans, Catalonians, Flemings and Occitanians--not to mention an occasional "Long Live Free Savoy" daubed on the walls of that Alpine province on the Italian frontier.

Of three million Bretons in northwest France, a million speak Celtic Breton, Autonomists feel that Brittany lost its independence in the 16th century and has been abused by Paris ever since.

Two years ago, 55 Bretons were jailed after bombings, and activist groups are currently lying low. Officials dispute their claim to widespread support, but it is hard to find a Breton who doesn't think that Paris owes him something.

The Corsicans are remnants of political "clans," and the Occitanians want the language of Oc taught around Toulouse. In that tongue you say "oc" for yes, instead of "oui."

In Alsace and Lorraine, where most people speak a Germanic dialect, the problem is learning enough French at school to compete for quality jobs. A small movement wants special assistance for development along regional lines, with their own language honored.

Just over the border in Switzerland, the Jura Assembly seeks autonomy for the French-speaking portion. They scored a victory recently when the canton's voters gave the Jurassians permission to decide their own future.

In Belgium, street fighting often pits the northerners, called the Flemings because they speak Dutch-like Flemish, against the southern Walloons, who speak French. The Walloons were once the majority dispensing justice and education only in French. Today, the Flemings are a majority, and light industry has made their area richer. Both camps resent bilingualism as it exists in the Brussels area.

Language also sets apart 500,000 Dutchmen known as Frisians who live along the German bight of the North Sea. They militantly defend their language and culture.

Sweden's foreign activists are the Croatians. The rightwing political group called Ustashi recently drew attention to its independent Croatia idea by occupying a Yugoslav consultate and later by fatally wounding the Yugoslav Ambassador. Yugoslavs, rather than Slovenes, are a minority, occasionally militant, in Austria. Their area annexed after a 1921 referendum, the Slovenes now scatter pamphlets and paint over German-language signs when they feel their own schools and language are challenged.

Italy's creation of "special autonomy" regions blunted the drive of the Sicilian separatist movement. But passions still run high in the Alto Adige region, where militant German-speaking residents seek annexation to Austria, to which it belonged until World War I.

Spain still plays host to probably the best organized guerilla organization in Europe today, the ETA, Basque Land and Liberty.

The ETA wants an independent arxist state in the Basque provinces, then all of Spain. Full time guerrillas may number fewer than 50, but they kidnaped a West German Consul and traded him for 16 Basques on trial at Burgos.

Draft Quota Announced By Defense Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apparently satisfied the House and Senate will reconcile differences in the draft law, the Defense Department has announced a quota of 16,000 for July and August.

"It is prudent planning and gives draft-age youths and the Selective Service notice of what's coming," one Pentagon official said Friday.

Other defense officials said the action was taken because both chambers have approved a two-year extension of the draft law, which expires June 30. They expect the differences to be resolved on other aspects of the bill with the final legislation sent to President Nixon during July.

The major difference is an amendment in the Senate version calling for a phased withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam over nine months if all U.S. prisoners of war are released. It is likely to receive a cool reception both in conference and on the House floor.

But even if the bill should be detained in Congress longer than anticipated, defense officials said the July —August quotas could be filled by college students whose deferments have ended.

A spokesman said the usual paper work for the new quotas was being processed by that draft director Curtis W. Tarr said he would not issue the call to the states until Congress completes action.

Officials said the two-month quota will be equally divided between July and August. This falls well within Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird's prediction last April that draft calls for the rest of 1971 would not top 10,000 a month.

The new calls represent a 20 per cent drop from the combined May-June calls of 20,000.

President Nixon has said he wants a "zero draft" by mid=1973, when the pending two=year draft extension would epire. Some officials, however, including outgoing Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor, have expressed doubt the all-volunteer Army can be attained in two years.

BEING CITY MARSHAL is only one -fourth of John "Bud" Pearson's official duties for the city of Wyatt, population 562.

Danforth Petition Drive Called Off

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of a group circulating petitions for a constitutional amendment that would allow Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth to run for governor in 1972 has decided not to continue the drive at the request of the attorney general.

Larry Edwards, of St. Charles, chairman of the Committee for Effective Government, agreed Saturday to call off the drive after receiving a request from Danforth late Friday.

Edwards said the group has collected about 40,000 signatures of the necessary 100,000 to put the question to the voters. But he said it seemed clear that the governor would not call a special election to put the question to the voters, so the petition drive was being ended.

Wyatt Gin Fined $250

DALLAS — Wyatt Cotton Co. of Wyatt, Mo., has been fined $250 by a U. S. district court for the Eastern District of Missouri and permanently enjoined from further violations of the cotton research and promotion act, the U. S. department of agriculture reports.

Officials of USDA's consumer and marketing service said the gin firm failed to file reports and remit $1 per bale on part of the cotton purchased during the 1968 and 1969 cotton seasons as required by the act. They said the firm has now filed the reports and remitted the assessments.

The cotton research and promotion act provides for a producer asssment of $1 on each bale of upland cotton. First buyers are designated as handlers responsible for collecting and remitting the assessment. The money is used for a research and promotion program designed to strengthen the competitive position of cotton and to expand its uses.

A 20-man cotton board, selected from nominations made by cotton producer organizations, administers the program.

The department denied the charges against Ambassador Anthony D. Marshall, a former Central Intelligence Agency employe, and the others.

Israeli Guns Open Fire

Israeli antiaircraft guns opened fire today on two Egyptian jets that flew over Israeli military positions on the Suez Canal, the military command in Tel Aviv reported.

The aircraft, Soviet-built Sukhoi S47 fighter-bombers, were not hit, a spokesman said.

It was the sixth such incident since the cease-fire began last August and, as in the past, Israel lodged a complaint with the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization charging a violation of the standstill.

On the political front, King Faisel of Saudi Arabia and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said no peace can prevail in the Middle East unless all war-conquered Arab regions, including Jerusalem, are "liberated from Israeli occupation."

The two rulers said in a joint communique the restoration of the rights of the Palestinian people is also a prerequisite for peace.

The communique was announced simultaneously in Cairo and Riyadh after the Arabian monarch ended an eight-day state visit to Egypt.

MEN WANTED

There has always been a need for dedicated men to lead our country. More than 50 years ago Josiah Holland wrote in his book "The National Need" about our shortage of great men. His lines could have been written today:

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and
ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking."

Mrs. Phoebe Martin, RN, who is a cook and connoisseur of renown, ran across an anecdote in "The Ladies Aid Society Cookbook," a recent publication from New England, and passes it along. In a Vermont town, a bachelor man appeared regularly at the scene of church suppers, after all guests were gone and the ladies were "redding up," and bought leftover doughnuts at bargain rates. He didn't mind whose doughnuts he bought, for he knew there was intense rivalry among the sisters, but he always made his own test; he'd poke his finger into the hole of each doughnut and select those that fit tightest, on the theory that the smaller the hole, the more goodie. He had done this since discovering that the price was the same for large and small hole doughnuts.

So one year he presented the society with a new cutter he had fashioned in his workshop, and he purposely made it outsize with a small hole.

Of course, the ladies discovered his effort at deception (or prudent economy) and kept on using their own standard cutters for the trade, but they'd always make a dozen extra with his cutter for Willie's benefit. He was properly grateful, too. When he died, with no known kin, he left half his money to the church, the other half to the ladies aid.

Jesus was not a socialist ... In Luke 12:13-14 Jesus was talking to a large crowd when a man approached Him saying: "Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me." and Jesus replied: "Man who made me a judge or a divider over you?" Jesus didn't tax the "haves" to give to the "have-nots." Jesus said: "Take heed, and beware of covetousness ..."

The collectives who say "debt doesn't mean anything, we owe it to ourselves," and "the way to stop inflation is with a surtax," remind me of the treasurer of the woman's club who got up and reported: "I am happy to state that through prudent management we ended the year with a deficit of $114.23." A little old lady in tennis shoes jumped up and said: "I move we donate it to the Salvation Army."

There will be a heap of rhetorical nonsense aired in connection with the death of the four students at Kent State University. But one fact emerges clearly: the days of student innocence are over, along with the divine right of students to do what they please without paying a price. Apparently it does not matter if students are innocent and/or ignorant, or on a neat lark or staging a rebellion they do not understand; men in uniform called to keep order can be put in fear of their lives — an elemental fact which has been annihilated by liberal sophistry. American institutions such as the family and primary and secondary education have not failed America; the people who man them have. The students of the Kent State mob were the products of an older generation which was confused about what it was making.

Considering its annual criminal assault on the taxpayers, Social Security is not unlike the SS troops who raped and pillaged on Hitler's orders during World War II. The characterization may seem harsh, but it is not. Annually, it seems, SS is raised in one fashion or another because it never seems to provide enough. Since Americans cannot forget their senior citizens in times of inflation, what can we do, but raise the ante? This built-in assault on the taxpayers thus is endless. Since this is an election year, the House Ways and Means Committee has held another Raise-The-SS-Ante meeting and seems about to reveal a whopping increase in Social Security benefits, along with an increase in the SS taxable wage base from $7,800 to $9,000. The ever-increasing costs were never supposed to happen, and the taxpayers ought to remember Social Security's (and socialism's) lies when the Congress further takes up the guaranteed annual wage proposal (passed by the House) and the socialized medicine plan called National Health Insurance.

Social Security is a high crime, considering what it does to the young and the free. It allows no one to opt out (or "select out" as the bureaucrats say). If one were young and free and 21 and Social Security didn't have a gun in his back, he could: put his $400 a year into a retirement income policy and by age 65 have a) $42,144, or $251 a month for the rest of his life, b) the right to pass on to his estate all benefits including $15,500 in life insurance — none of which is humanley possible under the Social Security program. REAL CONCEIT

We just heard about a nurse who is so conceited that when she takes her patient's pulse, she subtracts ten beats for her personality.

PRICE OF EXTREMISM

While law-abiding citizens have been harassed and threatened with laws depriving them of the right of gun ownership, militant lawbreakers continue to go merrily on their way. Breaking gun registration or ownership laws are of little moment to them except in instances like the one where the police raided a home and confiscated 605 Thompson submachine guns bought as scrap metal at a military post in 1964. Also taken in the raid was as assortment of other arms, including rifles, shotguns, pistols, antitank grenades, military rockets and ammunition. There is a vast difference between laws designed to curb the possession of such arsenals and laws restricting the basic constititutional right of the citizen who respects his obligation to society and the law, to "keep and bear arms".

A chilling instance of what could happen to the disarmed citizen occurred recently in Los Angeles. A series of newspaper pictures showed the sequence of events when an armed gunman entered a store, pulled a revolver and fired point blank at a clerk behind the counter. The pictures showed the clerk as he drew a pistol and dropped the gunman and would-be robber in his tracks before he was able to dispatch a second and probably fatal shot.

The right to defend oneself with a firearm still exists in the U. S. But, if recent gun control proposals had become law the pictures of the Los Angeles holdup attempt would have shown the tragedy of a defenseless citizen being shot down by a felon who quite possibly would never have been apprehended. Such would be the price of gun control extremism.

MEETING TWIN GOALS

People cannot exist in a vacuum. They need jobs and opportunity. That is why so much of the opposition to industrial growth in the name of environmental conservation is like talking about the weather. The fact is that most progressive companies and industries have twin goals. They seek to grow in response to the needs of the community. At the same time, they apply the latest environmental preservation technology to their operations, and it is not just companies in smog-ridden metropolitan areas that confront these needs.

Montana, for example, is growing, and it is fortunate to have as one of its assets one of the most progressive, investor-owned electric power companies in the country. This company has just announced a $15-million investment program in new plant and property for the year 1971 under a construction schedule that will see major additions in every section of its service area. The 1971 program will bring expansion investments of the company to more than $100 million since 1965. A major part of the 1970 expenditure involves the installation of additional facilities at one of its large, steam-electric generating plants to improve the plant's performance and further reduce stack emissions. The company has previously invested a million dollars in air purification equipment, and the 1970 additions will far exceed state environmental requirements.

Here is a practical illustration of the evolutionary steps that must be taken to insure a livable environment along with the economic development required in a growing nation of more than 200 million people.

BETTER PROTECTION
FOR FORESTS

Lookout towers and observation planes, the traditional methods of forest fire detection, may soon be obsolete.

U. S. Forest Service researchers from Montana recently reported to a University of Michigan symposium that a new remote sensing forest fire detection system worked so well in a test last year that is is scheduled to replace 25 lookout towers in western Montana and northwestern Idaho.

The system, called "bispectral forest fire detection," involves an airplane equipped with Doppler radar, heat-sensitive infrared instruments and a rapid film processor to provide in-flight maps" of surveyed areas.

The entire operation is contained in the aircraft. The information gathered is simply radioed to ground stations, which take appropriate firefighting action.

Tested for two months last summer in daily flights over an 8,000 -square-mile area in Montana and Idaho, the system spotted small campfires from as high as 15,000 feet. Because it detects heat radiation, it discovered 44 wildfires before there were any visual signs of smoke or flame.

Not only was the system faster and more dependable than observation from lookout towers and planes but it cost about $500,000 less to operate.

Strike Proves
Vital need for
Postal Reform

The strike by postal employees underscores the need for post office reform, according to W. P.Gullander, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

He said the recent strike gives weight to postal reform legislation currently pending in Congress. "Recognition of the fact that postal workers appear to have genuine grievances is an important basis for postal reform, which would bring businesslike management techniques to this vital service," he said.

Mr. Gullander said the strike would have been "unlikely" if the basic postal reform urged by the authoritative Kappel Commission had been in effect.

In a letter to Sen. Gale W. McGee ((D.-Wyo.), Chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, Mr. Gullander said, "It is now rather obvious that the dissatisfaction of the postal workers is largely due to the delay in responding to their grievances—and more particularly to the continued delay of wage adjustments. On the other hand, there is strong evidence that postal reform would go far in removing some of the factors responsible for the postal service's problems in employee relations and elsewhere."

The NAM supports the reform measure, Mr. Gullander said, "because it aims to provide the postal service with the same type of management personnel policies and other techniques that have been outstandingly successful in the private sector."

A FOOLISH COURSE

It has been said that if man is to continue to live on this planet, he must become more concerned about his environment. By the same token, he must become more concerned with ways to utilize every technological breakthrough that will help produce the things he needs with as little contamination of the environment as possible. Environmentalists, who oppose nuclear power generation, act in the mistaken belief that pure air and water can be preserved by simply putting the brakes on this latest scientific advance in human knowledge.

Testimony before the congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy has given what press reports call "... a chilling account of potential disaster from air and water pollution if conventional methods are used to satisfy the nation's growing hunger for electrical power." Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, Presidential Science Adviser, warned that, "Without nuclear power, the nation's energy supply in the next century and perhaps the latter portion of this century would be in serious jeopardy." Another witness, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, testified that, "With good planning and continued dedicated work on the part of those in the nuclear field, our electric utilities and those government agencies that regulate our nation's power systems, we can have safe, clean and reliable nuclear power -- as much of it as we will need."

The environmental problems of nuclear power involving "thermal pollution" and radiation are susceptible to solution according to top nuclear energy authorities. As long as population growth continues at the present rate, and as long as we wish to live as a civilized nation, whose people consume energy in soaring amounts, there is no alternative but to look to the frontiers of science for answers to environmental problems. Those who turn their backs on this fact advocate a course of irreparable folly.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--As part of a Federal Power Commission effort to ramrod through a $4 billion gas rate increase, FPC officials set up an illegal, secret meeting with an industry spokesman only weeks before his case was to be heard.

The clandestine affair was thwarted by a pro-consumer FPC official who charged that the secret session would violate FPC regulations and could lead to a sell-out to the natural gas industry.

We learned of the meeting from a sheaf of confidential documents which were slipped to us so that we might inform the public of the costly hornswaggle which would affect half the United States.

The plot to sock the American housewife with a whopping gas rate increase is a complicated affair, as we explained in earlier columns. What it boils down to is this:

FPC Chairman John Nassikas and his pro-industry underlings sought to grant $4 billion worth of increases by using gas industry figures which they had already been told were unreliable.

These figures--disputed by Nassikas's own economic staff--attempt to show that the industry must get huge rate increases if it is to develop new gas reserves.

FPC rules clearly state that no staffer can meet off-the-record with a potential witness who is directly involved in a disputed case. This rule is designed to prevent the FPC from giving away its case or making any deals with the potent industries it is supposed to regulate.

Yet Tom Joyce, head of the Bureau of Natural Gas, set up a closed-door meeting between the FPC top brass and John Jacobs, the persuasive chairman of the Gas Reserves Committee of the American Gas Association.

The conference was expressly designed to exclude consumer advocates such as the American Public Gas Association who were also parties to rate cases.

In a memo dated March 18, 1970, FPC General Counsel Gordon Gooch, the very man charged with enforcing the commission's rules, gave the meeting his personal approval, even thoguh John Jacobs was scheduled to testify on the case on May 1, 1970.

On March 23, a few days before Jacobs was to huddle with his supposed regulators, an FPC official revolted.

Haskell Wald, head of the FPC Office of Economics and long a fighter for the consumer, outlined his apprehension in a confidential memorandum to General Counsel Gooch.

"IMPRESSION OF COLLUSION"

Wald's memo is worth quoting at length for it shows more vividly than any of the Nassikas Papers the Byzantine world of the FPC, where pro-consumers and pro-industry factions are locked in combat.

"It will be a closed meeting," Wald wrote. "There will be no transcript or official minutes and there will not even be a public announcement that it is being held."

Some quarters already viewed the industry figures with "intense suspicion," Wald said. He warned of the "danger of criticism if word of the meeting and the subjects discussed reaches outsiders."

Jacobs would be "clued in" by the meeting on what his testimony should be and might "also gather suggestions on how he should shape the responses on cross-examination. No other witness will be given this advantage."

Wald frankly suggested it might well "create an impression of collusion." Finally, he said, such a meeting violated both written rules and "definite instructions," and therefore should be called off.

Wald's timely protest succeeded. The meeting was cancelled a few days before it was to be held.

Gooch asserted to my associate Les Whitten that he was "responsible for calling it off." He did not mention Wald's protest or his own earlier approval of the meeting. Nassikas has declined comment. Jacobs was in Morocco and could not be reached.

Footnote: Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, chairman of the House Small Business Special Problems subcommittee, is calling Nassikas in July to testify on our revelations. Our documents, said Smith, cast doubt on the FPC's figures. Smith said it appeared that small businessmen, housewives and the poor would be victimized by the $4 billion increase.

--BRAZILIAN SUGAR PLUM--

We told earlier this month how millions of dollars in U.S. sugar quotas were handed to racist South Africa despite congressional strictures against buying sugar from nations that discriminate against American citizens.

We have now learned that the Brazilian dictatorship will receive a 519,909-ton sugar quota worth millions despite a Congressional edict from the House Agriculture Committee barring quotas to countries where the benefits don't sift down to the people who grow the sugar.

Instead, Brazil's dictatorship sees to it that the sugar oligarchs in the northeast plantations get the sugar cash from the U.S. Few of the benefits reach the workers.

When Professor Joe Page of Georgetown Law School tried to explain this to the Senate Finance Committee, he received one of the year's rudest receptions on Capitol Hill. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the committee, had issued a grandeloquent handout saying he wanted to examine "how the benefits of (the quotas) flow through to the working man and serve to improve the standard of living in the nation involved."

Page stated that wages are often less than $5.25 per six-day week for the Brazilian peasants who grow the sugar. But as he began to detail how the government and sugar kings conspire to starve and cheat the 500,000 northeastern Brazilian peasants, Long, champion of "the working man," stumbled up from his seat and abruptly left the hearing room.

Senator Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, was the only member of the committee who stayed to listen to Page's testimony.

Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., however, has been working to curtail giveaways to countries where the American bounty never reaches the workers in the field.

ELECTRONIC 'INTERCEPTS' PAY OFF:
Atty. Gen. Asserts New Wiretap Law
Heightens Protection of Nation's Privacy

by Victor Riesel

There is electrifying talk about snooping. There are changes of invasion of privacy on the political and intellectrual and cultural fronts. There is the view that the wiretap and the electronic bug are the ingredients of a terminal case.

But Attorney General John Mitchell, in whose hands is the power (with the authority of the courts) to intercept conversations, thinks differently. He believes this nation is helpless in the fight against the social enemy without modern crime-fighting weapons.

He has an intriguing view of the benefits of the new wiretap law. I asked him to spell it out. He did, exclusively for this column:

By
John N. Mitchell
Attorney General for the United States

Washington:-- Federal agents keeping watch on a narcotics ring recently uncovered more than they were looking for--not only evidence of narcotics violations, but also evidence that a bank robbery and murder were being planned as well.

Acting on this evidence, the agents moved promptly. The suspects were apprehended, a bank robbery was prevented and a life was saved from a violent end. Criminal indictments followed and the intended murder victim -- a narcotics pusher -- became a government witness. Nine offenders entered guilty pleas, four others were found guilty, and the ringleader was sentenced to 20 years on narcotics charges and 10 years for assault on a federal officer.

Without the authority to use a court-ordered wiretap, there is little doubt that these criminals would have been successful in most, if not all, of their plans.

This authority was provided in Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 allowing electronic surveillance by the federal government with approval and close supervision by federal courts.

It was granted by Congress in an effort to give federal authorities a better tool to protect the public from organized crime and it has proven to be a most effective weapon in the fight to defeat this threat to our society.

From mid-February 1969, when Title III authority first was utilized, until April of this year, a total of 315 court orders for intercepts were approved and executed in criminal investigations. In two years, only one application for an intercept was rejected by a federal judge. Of the 315 orders, all but 12 were productive, and two-thirds of all the intercepted communications have been incriminating.

More than 900 arrests and 100 convictions have resulted so far.

For example:

-- 55 persons were arrested in Newark including the boss of one of the nation's major organized crime syndicates, and he and 45 others pleaded guilty to gambling charges.

-- The first intercept under Title III resulted in the seizure of 124 pounds of pure heoin valued at $8 million, being smuggled in cans of paella oil from Spain.

-- Title III evidence resulted in indictments last month against 152 persons on charges of gambling and obstructing justice. Among those involved were 16 Detroit policemen, including one inspector, three lieutenants and seven sergeants.

-- Court-supervised wiretaps have resulted in arrests of about 190 persons on narcotics charges in the past two years and the seizure of $14 million in hard drugs.

Due to the effectiveness of electronic surveillance, its use increased in the second year, but the length of intercepts has been reduced, and the rate of requests for extensions has been cut in half. In fact, in 1970 nearly two-thirds of the intercepts were used for less time than originally authorized.

By law, no original request (or an application for extension) can exceed 30 days. Most of original requests are for 15 days. In 1970, the average lasted less than 15 days.

Some fears have been expressed that federal wiretapping would lead to wide-spread eavesdropping and wholesale invasion of privacy of law-abiding citizens. Experience of more than two years has not only proven these fears to be groundless, but we have found that the protection of individual privacy has improved under the strictures of this law.

This law provides for a prison sentence of up to five years and a $10,000 fine for conviction of illegal electronic surveillance. In addition to this severe penalty, civil action may be brought under this law to recover actual and punitive damages and attorney costs.

Title III has therefore become indispensable in reducing illegal eavesdropping as well as in combatting organized crime and narcotics trafficking. Complaints of private wiretaps have dropped by more than two-thirds of the approximately 100 complaints a month received before passage of the 1968 Act.

The first conviction for private wiretapping resulted in a five-year sentence for a blackmailer who recorded a woman's compromising calls to businessmen.

Other significant convictions of private wiretappers involved a television news employee who bugged a platform session at the 1968 Demoractic National Convention and an expert electronic eavesdropper involved in several highly publicized trials who transported an illegal recording device from one state to another. Last month 346 tie-clip microphones voluntarily were surrendered under the law which prohibits the manufacture, sale and possession of such electronic defects.

Dire predictions that Title III would lead to widespread snooping and invasion of privacy without a corresponding benefit in law enforcement have proven wrong. Not a single instance of abuse or misuse of the authority or power has been reported, and the effectiveness of Title III in the war against organized crime is firmly established.

Court-authorized electronic surveillance has been aptly described as our single most valuable weapon in this fight. That is important, because Congress granted Title III authority in an effort to strike hard at organized crime.

Congress noted that organized crime had developed into corporations of corruption, indeed quasi-goverments controlled by hoodlum codes. Mob justice was dispensed with threats, beatings, and summary judgments--a quick opinion, a nod, could mean execution. Potential witnesses were abducted, threatened, beaten, bought off, or killed.

Better tools for reaching organized crime have been needed and Congress gave us one when it passed Title III. Although effective use has been made of this authority, the Department of Justice has never been careless or abusive with it. The law authorized the temporary, emergency use of electronic intercepts followed by court application within 48 hours, but I have never granted approval of installations under this special section.

In summary, the only repression that has resulted from Title III is the repression of criminals. The only ones who have had their privacy invaded are persons who have given courts reason to believe that they have been engaging in illegal activities.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., has announced plans for public hearings in early fall on overall use of wiretappings under Title III, both state and federal. He is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on Criminal Laws and Proocedures, and he plans a comprehensive examination of both law and practice in the area of electronic surveillance.

I feel confident that a thorough examination will show what an effective anti-crime instrument Title III has become, and prove groundless the fear of abuse that caused some to voice concern or outright opposition.

Same Old Story, Husband Chooses Wife Over Mistress

Dear Ann Landers: I was jilted twice in four years and I turned to my boss for comfort. He was married but no longer in love with his wife. We saw each other secretly for seven years.

Now it appears his wife has known about us all along--even the gifts he gave me--yet she said nothing. Last week she offered him a divorce. He didn't want one. Instead he has called off our romance. The following questions are keeping me up nights. Please supply some answers:

1. Why would a wife sit by and let her husband carry on an affair for seven years?

2. Why did he tell me he loved me and that he didn't love his wife, yet when he was faced with the choice he chose her?

3. Do you think if I went to his wife and told her everything he said about her that she might change her mind and kick him out?

4. What should I say to the rat for taking seven of the best years of my life?---Steady Reader Who Is Dying Inside

Dear Dy: If you are a steady reader you have seen your letter in this column a hundred times. Only the signatures are different.

The answers to your questions are as follows:

1. She had nothing to gain by throwing himout and everything to gain by riding out the storm.

2. This is the classic pattern for cheating husbands-- you could have predicted it.

3. Don't bore her with details. She's not interested. If she was going to kick him out she would have done so by now.

4. Don't bore him with a farewell speech. He's not interested either.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please rescue at least a million Mid-westerners who are hopelessly trapped by a larcenous gimmick called "bridal showers?"

The moment an engagement is announced the mothers start booking these ghastly parties. Some women find themselves on three or four lists. A turndown does not nullify the obligation to buy a gift. If you are unable to attend the shower, you are expected to send a gift anyway. These days it is impossible to buy anyting decent for less than $10. And please be aware that a shower gift has nothing whatever to do with the wedding gift. That's separate.

The record for grabby mothers was set by a woman in our group who is considered well bred by all standards. She boasted that her daughter's shower loot amounted to well over $2,000 in usable goods. The wedding gifts, she estimated, will come to at least three times that amount. Help!---Party Pooped And Broke

Dear PP. and B.: What makes you think bridal showers are regional? It's a Coast-to-Coast affliction.

Here are Ann Landers' ground rules based strictly on common sense:

Only one shower should be given--preferably a jointly sponsored luncheon by all the bridesmaides. It should be a kitchen shower or a bathroom shower--with a limit on what can be spent for a gift. Tops---$3.

Prenuptial parties are usually a bore, and a waste of time, money and energy. The wise bride nixes them.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of your newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Roberts-Gisi Vows Exchanged

DEXTER — Miss Ramona Lou Gisi and Mr. Paul Rickie Roberts exchanged marriage vows on June 5 at eight o'clock in the evening at the Hopewell General Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Frank Noyes.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gisi, Route 1, Essex and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Roberts of Route 2, Dexter.

Mrs. Cathy Ross, cousin of the bride, offered traditional wedding selections and accompanied Lloyd Holland as he sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown made by her grandmother, Mrs. Lena Warren. The creation of peau de soie was overlaid with organza and featured a formal length skirt, long sleeves and a bodice marked with a high neckline. Tiny satin buttons marked the cuffs and appliques accented the gown at vantage points. Her floor length mantilla was edged in lace and featured matching floral-appliques.

Miss Gisi complimented her attire with a cascading bouquet of mums and poms interspersed with baby's breath and greenery.

Miss Lyn Gisi, was maid of honor and Mrs. Ann Hesslig was matron of honor. They are both sisters of the bride. Bridesmaid was Miss Mary Jo Gisi, cousin of the bride.

Best man was Everett Hessling, brother -in -law of the bride, and groomsmen were Roger Cooper and James Fleeman, brother - in - law of the groom.

Ushers were Ray Dowdy and Randy Jennings who also served as candlelighters.

Miss Sherry Gisi, cousin of the bride, was at the guest book.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church basement.

Presiding at the serving table were Mrs. Polly Fleeman, sister of the groom, Becky Gisi, cousin of bride, Vicky Lane and Debbie Bloomfield.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Richland high school. The groom was graduated from Bloomfield high school with the class of 1968 and is a Third Class Petty Officer in the U.S. Navy presently stationed at Millington, Tenn.

The couple will reside at 8033 Armour Road Millington.

The Elegant Way To Wait

Pleasant summer days call for maternity dresses with elan. Here, "Bosha's" border print is done in a flouncy cotton that combines plum and red on a muslin color ground.

The Rev. Earl R. Whaley of Liberty, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated, assisted by the Rev. H. W. Chaney, pastor of the local church. Miss Laurie Moran was in charge of the guest book.

The scooped neckline was edged with tiny Venice lace edging. The wrist-length Victorian sleeves were of sheer embroidery, ending with plain deep cuffs, trimmed with matching edging. The bouffant skirt featured two deep box pleats in back forming fullness that swept into a circular chapel length. Her veil was Juliet cap overlaid with Venetian lace medallions sprinkled with pearls.

The best man was the groom's father, Carl Whaley. The ushers were Tommy Martin, Gallatin, Tenn., Keith Ledbetter, Livingston, Tenn., John Davis, Nashville, Tenn., and Donald Husky, Alcoa.

Blue Breezes To 16th Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — "Vida Blue is the best thing that has happened to the American League in 10 years," says second baseman Cookie Rojas of the Kansas City Royals.

Rojas, along with 33,888 fans had just watched the Oakland A's pitcher rack up his sixth shutout of the season.

Blue defeated the Royals, 7-0 Friday night for his 16th victory of the season against only two defeats. He struck out 12 and walked only one.

The victory moved the A's 10 full games ahead of Kansas City in the race for the American League West title.

Rojas had two of the five hits Blue allowed.

"He's a little bit like Sandy Koufax, but you really can't compare them," Rojas said. "Koufax pitched for 12 years and this is only the second season for this kid."

Blue took his success in stride as he has all season long."

"I don't know what I throw. I just do it. There was nothing special about this game.

"I'm never confident I'm going to win until the last batter is out," he said.

Among the spectators was Blue's mother, Sallie, from Mansfield, La. She brought along Vida's four sisters and one brother and they occupied owner Charlie Finley's private box. Finley flew the blue family to Oakland for the game.

Manager Dick Williams of the A's admits he expects Blue to win every time he pitches.

"The day will come when he doesn't win but it makes you wonder when that will be," Williams said. "Our players have so much confidence in Vida they know all they need is one or two runs to win."

Third baseman Sal Bando drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Mike Epstein hit his 10th homer of the year to make it easy for Blue.

Losing pitcher Mike Hedlund gave up only five hits but two errors and five walks helped the A's score all their runs against him.

The A's and Royals meet again this afternoon with Jim "Catfish" Hunter, 10-4, pitching for Oakland and Bruce Dal Canton, 7-2, pitching for Kansas City.

Two Out Rally Dumps Cards

You've heard of two-out rallies before but the Chicago Cubs had the kind of two-out rally baseball teams dream about.

The Cubs had two out in the seventh inning against St. Louis Friday night and then they started scoring. They didn't stop until they had 10 runs —that's T-E-N-in the biggest winning in the majors this season. All of them scored with the Cardinals needing only one more out to get out of the inning.

Chicago's 10-run explosion highlighted a 12-0 victory over the Cards and even with that kind of run-production, the Cubs were only third best in scoring in the National League Friday night.

Pittsburgh's slugging Pirates walloped five home runs and belted Philadelphia 14-4 while Atlanta exploded for 18 runs in a doubleheader-taking both ends from Cincinnati 8-6 and 10-3.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York swept a doubleheader from Montreal 4-1 and 4-2, Houston edged San Francisco 5-4 and San Diego edged Los Angeles 5-4.

In the American League, New York ripped Washington 12-2, Baltimore tripped Boston 7-3, Detroit dropped Cleveland 6-1, Milwaukee trimmed Minnesota 3-1, Chicago shut out California 2-0 and Oakland blanked Kansas City 7-0.

Pitcher Bill Bonham, who had never had a major league hit before singled twice in Chicago's big seventh inning. In fact, it was Bonham's first hit that started the rally. Glen Beckert also had two hits in the big inning as the Cubs bunched eight of their 20 hits.

Beckert, Billy Williams, Brock Davis and J.C. Martin each had three hits for the Cubs, who sent 16 men to bat in their big inning.

Bonham took over for Bill Hands after the Chicago started was struck on the right elbow by a ground ball in the fourth inning.

The Pirates used a barrage of five homers including two apiece by Jackie Hernandez and Richie Hebner to rip Philadelphia.

Willie Stargell also homered for Pittsburgh, and, for the third time in the last five games, the big Pirate slugger drove in four runs. He upped his major league leading home run and runs batted in totals to 27 and 76 respectively.

Deron Johnson and Willie Montanez each tagged two-run homers for the Phillies.

Earl Williams and Darrell Evans poked three-run homers in each game, leading Atlanta's twin victories over Cincinnati-Williams drove in four runs in the nightcap as the Braves exploded to score all of their runs in the first two innings.

In the opener, Ralph Garr doubled home Atlanta's tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and then scord on Oscar Brown's pinch single to clinch that victory.

Tony Perez had seven hits in the doubleheader for the Reds including his 10th and 11th home runs.

Buddy Harrelson drove in three runs with a single and a double and Dan Frisella fired 4 1-3 innings of scoreless relief as New York completed its doubleheader sweep against Montreal.

The Mets took the opener behind Nolan Ryan with Dave Marshall's fifth inning single driving in the tie-breaking run. Ryan scattered 11 hits and struck out 10 Expos, while Jerry Grote contributed three doubles for New York.

Pinch-hitter Jack Hiatt drilled a ninth inning single that drove in Houston's winning run and climaxed an Astro comeback to bean San Francisco and stop the Giants' seven-game winning streak.

Pitcher Gaylord Perry, working on a six-hitter, made a throwing error on an attempted sacrifice and then uncorked a wild pitch to put the Astros in business in the ninth. Hiatt's hit climaxed the rally which started when Denis Menke beat out an infield single, leading off the inning.

San Diego rallied for two runs in the ninth on Dave Campbell's bases-loaded single, and nipped Los Angeles.

Bob Barton started the winning rally with a single and Larry Stahl doubled him to third. After Angel Bravo was walked intentionally, Campbell delivered his winning hit.

Ivan Murrell and Ed Spiezio cracked consecutive homers earlier in the game for the Padres.

Football Tonight

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The 1971 football campaign begins tonight in the Coaches All-America game with West quarterback Jim Plunkett of Stanford out to show the New England Patriots of the National Football League he is worth every dime he is asking in contract negotiations.

The West is a touchdown pick over the East in the nationally televised ABC-TV 11th annual game which is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. CDT kickoff before some 45,000 fans in Jones Stadium.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner who was the number one draft selection in professional football, is yet to sign with the Patriots.

Plunkett won't say what he is asking other than to quip, "It's less than a million dollars."

Coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska will field a high -powered West offensive team. Quarterback Chuch Hixson of Southern Methodist, who holds numerous NCAA records, will back up Plunkett, Also, the West boasts such fleet receivers as Ernie Jennings of the Air Force, J.D. Hill of Arizona State and Chuck Dicus of Arkansas. Joe Orduna of Nebraska leads the ground game.

East coach Charley McClendon of Louisiana State has expressed concern over Plunkett's ability to move the ball.

"If we don't control the ball offensively, he Plunkett will probably put 17 to 24 points on the board," McClendon says.

McClendon has two effective operators at quarterback, although neither boasts the credentials of Plunkett and Hixson.

Scott Hunter of Alabama will receive the starting nod, and the number two man is Buddy Lee of LSU. Rex Kern, Ohio State's gifted quarterback, will concentrate on defense, although he will be ready if needed.

Top East receivers include Wes Chesson of Duke, Jim Livesay of Richmond, and Paul Staroba of Michigan. Mike Adame of Northwestern and Dave Brungard of Alabama head the ball carrying corps.

Jackson Returns

PUXICO -- Jeff Jackson who was sidelined two weeks ago with arm trouble, struck out 19 and allowed only two hits Friday night as Kelly beat the host team 9-0 in a Tri-County Babe Ruth League game here Friday night.

Davis was the victim of a nine hit attack for Kelly as he took the loss.

Jackson was too fast for the Puxico batters as they just couldn't connect with the ball.

Kelly pushed across three tallies in the top of the third and that turned out to be all they needed but they added five in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Kenny Urhahn hit a three run home and Jackson and Zeigler had two runs batted in apiece.

Nebraska Grid Star Placed on Probation

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The football future of University of Negraska star Johnny Rodgers is in the hands of head football coach and athletic director Bob Devaney.

Rodgers was placed on two years probation Friday by the Lancaster County District Court after pleading guilty last month to a felony charge of larceny.

The university ruled earlier he would be permitted to attend school next year should he be placed on probation.

Judge William C. Hastings sentenced the 19-year-old in connection with a May 20, 1970, incident at a Lincoln service station.

Rodgers was a star as a sophomore flanker last fall for Nebraska's unbeaten and national championship Cornnuskers, leading the team in kickoff and punt returns and pass receiving with 35 catches for 665 yards. He was third in team scoring with 66 points.

Rodgers' attorney, Dave Pierson, of Linclin, made a plea for clemency, telling the court Rodgers' " potential for good stubstantially outweighs his potential for bad."

Before sentencing Rodgers, Hastings told the Omaha-reared youth "the real tragedy here is what you've done or may have done to the children who have looked up to you."

Hastings said a probation report had indicated Rodgers has no prior criminal record and said probation is the usual sentence is such cases.

Two other persons were arrested along with Rodgers in connection with the service station incident and all three were charged with the same offence.

According to the complaint originally filed against Rodgers by County Atty. Paul Dougals, Rodgers took an unspecified amount of money from Glen Griggs, 64, the attendant at the station in the southeast corner of Lincoln.

Dr. Russell Brown, NU dean for student development, said earlier this month his staff and a student tribunal had agreed that Rodgers could attend school next fall should he receive probation.

American League

Police defeated the Flower Basket, 17-7 in a come from behind effort in the American league opener last night. Jenkins blanked First National Bank, 16-0, in the second game.

Police got into early trouble in the first inning as the Flower Basket scooted six runs home in the first inning off of starting pitcher Shelley. Relief hurler Potashnick collected the final out of the inning. Four walks, two hit batsmen, and two singles off of Shelley sent six Basket men in to score.

Potashnick worked the final out of the game, walked in one run, then shut out the Flower Basket for the remainder of the game, yielding no hits and striking out eight. Police's Hatchett drove in the winning run in the bottom of the fourth inning with one of his three hits in the game.

Potashnick also went three for four in the Police lineup, teaming with Hatchett for six of the Force's 10 hits.

Hoskins and Baldwin connected for the Flower Basket's only hits, both in the first inning.

Seven doubles and the two hit pitching of Dan Williams boosted Jenkins into its, 16-0, shutout win over First National Bank. Williams and Vaughn connected for two of the winner's doubles. Karnes, Sauls, and Holt added the remaining two base hits.

Hunt and Vines put the two singles in the Banker's lineup.

Bedwell suffered the loss on the mound while Williams picked up the win.

World Record Set

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The Amageur Athletic Union's National Track and Field Championships follow a tough act today after a session where Rod Milburn of Southern University cracked the world record in the 120-yard high hurdles in 13 seconds flat.

Two meet records also fell and AAU titles were at stake in 12 more events today. If good weather continued, meet officials talked of chances for other records.

Milburn, the NCAA champion, dazzled a crowd of 8,100 at the University of Oregon's Hayward Field as he clipped two-tenths of a second off the world record set by West Germany's Martin Lauer in 1959.

Milburn, a 20- year - old physical education major, said he felt confident he would finish first in the finals after setting the mark in the semifinals. He did, winning in a wind -aided 13.1.

Milburn turned in the world record but it was hometown favorite Steve Prefontaine, Oregon's two -time NCAA three -mile champion, who brought the crowd to its feet.

"It was beautiful, just beautiful," Prefontaine said, after he shattered the three - mile meet record with a 12-minute, 58.6-second clocking that surpassed the 13:10.4 mark by Bob Schul in 1965.

Prefontaine's time was just off the American collegiate record of 12:53.0, set in 1966 by Gerry Lindgren of Washington State, who finished fourth Friday.

The AAU meet record in the high jump also fell as Reynaldo Brown of Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo, Calif., went 7-3, eclipseing the 7-2 mark set by John Thomas in 1960 and equailed in 1966 by Otis Burrell.

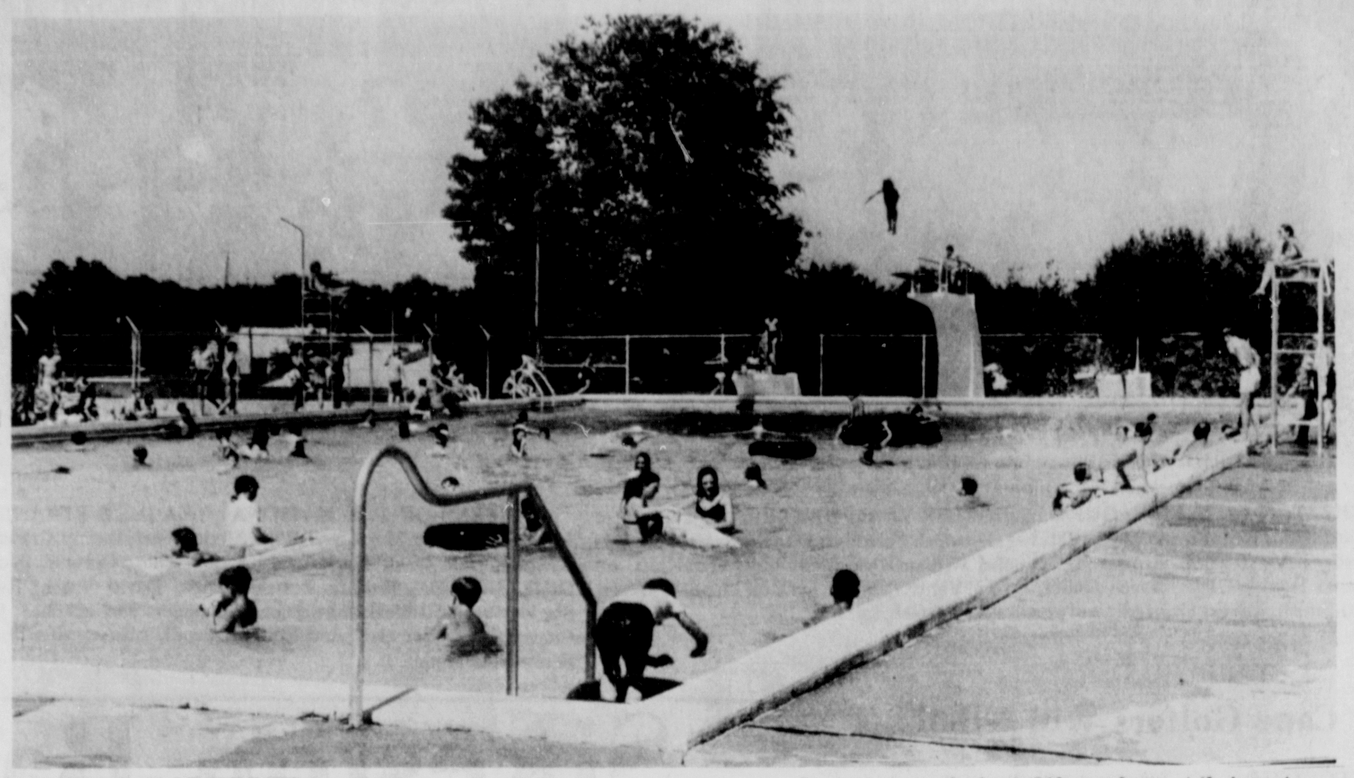

Arnie Robinson of the San Diego Track Club ousted defending champion Bouncey Moore of Oregon in the long jump.

Robinson leaped 26-10¾ on his final attempt after Moore had gone 26-4¾.

Medina Court Martial Scheduled For Trial On Non-Capital Basis

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)— Capt. Ernest Medina, no longer facing the death penalty, is scheduled to go on trial July 26 on murder charges stemming from an infantry sweep through the Vietnamese village of My Lai nearly three and a half years ago.

The Army announced Friday that Medina would be court-martialed on a noncapital basis. Shortly before, Col. Kenneth Howard of Atlanta, the military judge, denied defense dismissial motions and ruled that Medina must stand trial.

Howard initially set the date as July 19 but changed it at the request of Maj. William Eckhardt, the prosecutor.

Eckhardt announced the Army's decision not to seek the death penalty. He said he had been instructed by the commanding general of the 3rd U.S. Army, Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, to treat the case as noncapital.

Medina, if convicted, still could face live imprisonment.

The 34-year-old career soldier from Montrose, Colo., was the company commander of Lt. William L. Calley's platoon. Calley was convicted earlier this year of murdering 22 civilians at My Lai and sentenced to life in prison. His case is under military review.

Medina is accused of personally killing two persons and of being responsible for the deaths of 100 others during the operation at My Lai.

Eckhardt told Howard that trying Medina on a noncapital basis would permit the Army to use written testimony in its prosecution, such testimony is inadmissable in capital cases.

Howard said Eckhardt would be allowed to go to Vietnam July 6 to take depositions from two South Vietnamese who were at My Lai with Medina's unit.

The developments in Medina's case came at the close of a six-day preliminary hearing.

Medina's civilian attorney, F. Lee Bailey, had argued during the hearing that high-ranking Army officers improperly influenced the proceedings and biased the officers responsible for an impartial evaluation of evidence. He said the Army felt public opinion demanded a trial regardless of the evidence.

Howard ruled that the Army fairly investigated the case.

"I do not find it was the overall policy of the Army to deny the accused a fair consideration of the charges against him," Howard said. "I do not find this case to be pervaded by command influence. I do not find he was to be tried regardless of the evidence."

Hoffa Renews Parole Plea

WASHINGTON (AP)— James R. Hoffa has made a new bid for freedom from federal prison but not until he shed all vestiges of office in the giant Teamsters Union he once controlled.

In an application filed late Friday by his son with the U.S. Board of Parole, Hoffa seeks reconsideration of the board's refusal last March to parole him from a 13-year term for mail fraud and jury tampering.

The timing of the move—the day after his resignation from all offices in Teamsters affiliates—heightened speculation the Nixon administration had passed word that Hoffa's only chance for early release was a complete break with the union.

Chairman George J. Reed said the parole board would consider the application for a rehearing on July 7, three days after the Teamsters are to select a new president at their Miami Beach convention.

Reed said the board can grant a rehearing only if "new and substantial information" is presented. Presumably, the new and substantial information would be that Hoffa no longer holds any office in the world's largest union. He resigned the teamsters presidency earlier this month.

Two separate decisions could confront the board. First, whether or not to grant the rehearing. That requires only two votes..

Second, if a rehearing is granted, whether or not to grant parole. This would take a majority of the board's eight members.

The former union leader has been in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison since March of 1967. When he entered, he faced only an eight-year sentence for jury tampering.

But shortly before the board was to take up his case last March, the Supreme Court reaffirmed a mail fraud conviction, which added five years to his total prison term.

Although the five-year sentence was indeterminate and technically did not affect Hoff's eligibility for parole, it undoubtedly was a factor in the board's denial at that time.

Since the March 31 decision, Hoffa has sought unsuccessfully to have a federal district court consolidate his sentences so that they would run concurrently rather than consecutively. He also sought, unsuccessfully, a Supreme Court review of his jury tampering conviction.

Joint Space Effort Conference Completed

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)— U.S. and Soviet space experts have completed a series of conferences which see the start of the first serious study of possible joint American-Russian space flights.

The 19 Soviet experts met with a group of U.S. space officials for five days' of discussions on a compatible docking system. They announced that a serious study was underway toward the possibility of Americans and Russians linking up in space.

In a joint statement Friday, they said a study on how to test a common docking system "would be based on the premise that the first such experiment might be the docking of an Apollo space craft with a manned orbital scientific station of the Salyut-type."

They added: "A subsequent experiment might be docking of a manned spacecraft of the Soyuz-type with an orbital scientific station of the Skylab-type."

The statement apparently refers to the Apollo command ship now used in the U.S. moon program and the Skylab science station scheduled for launch in 1973. Salyut is a Societ space science station now in orbit of the earth and Soyuz is a command ship used to ferry men to and from Salyut.

The statement said the two space groups would meet next in Moscow at the end of the year. The first meeting of the group was last October, also in Moscow.

The two delegations, the statement said, reached agreement on a number of questions, but that "a number of other questions require further discussion."

By far the most important development from the meeting, according to one observer, is the open willingness of both delegations to make a serious study of the possibility of joint U.S.-Soviet space flights.

Two Dexter Men Injured

DEXTER— Two traffic mishaps sent two to Dexter Memorial hospital yesterday.

At 2:20 p.m. two miles west of Dexter on highway 60, Treniss Evans Jr., 18, of Dexter, apparently fell asleep while driving an eastbound 1967 Chevrolet, the highway patrol said, and struck a westbound 1971 Oldsmobile driven by Frankie Howard, 42, of Chicago.

Evans sustained an elbow injury.

At the junction of highways 60 and business 60 in Dexter at 6:55 p.m., a 1966 Ford truck traveling east, driven by James Porter, 55, of Dexter, attempted to make a left turn at the junction, the patrol said, and was struck by an eastbound tractor-trailer unit, driven by Andrew Eller, 33, of Hutchison, N.C., when Eller attempted to pass the Ford truck.

Porter sustained a shoulder injury.

Statue Of Liberty: A National Disgrace

WASHINGTON (AP) — A century ago, a French sculptor arrived in New York City to look into the idea of building what is now the State of Liberty. To reach her today, he'd have to pass through what a congressman complains is "the valley of a garbage dump."

One hundred years almost to the day after Frederic Auguste Bartholdi stepped ashore in New York, Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., stepped on the floor of the House Thursday to tell of taking his 15-year-old daughter Kyle to see the great statue.

Leaving the island of Manhattan recently they had to pass through the garbage dump in Battery Park to board a ship to the statute, a journey he said was a "national disgrace."

"She was shocked by the sight of the mess in Battery Park and I was embarrassed to let her see that our country doesn't think any more of national shrines," Ichord said.

"The day we made our visit, more than 90 per cent of the people waiting to visit the statute were from foreign lands.

"I suggest that this only not poor public relations but it is disrespectful to our guests and gives the impression of a total lack of pride in our heritage."

Ichord said he has written National Park Service Director George Hartzog urging either Mayor John V. Lindsay or New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller be contacted on the matter.

Professor Talks About Ads

CARBONDALE — Dr. L. Erwin Atwood, associate professor of journalism at Souther Illinois University spoke at the summer meeting of the Illmoky Ad Club.

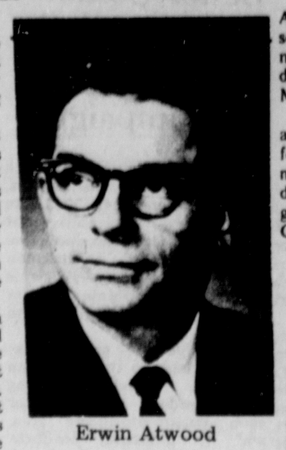

He spoke on "People Don't Discriminate Between News and Advertising." He said that women evaluate advertising as good and bad and that is good because women have 80 per cent of the wealth. He described the kind of women who like advertising and the kind who dislike it.

Dr. Atwood said that in a recent survey it was pointed out that 95 per cent of the people are of the opinion that you can believe advertisements. In another survey to find out which is more important, news or advertising, it proved to be equal.

Ballots will be mailed after Thursday for election of officers.

Earl Jewell, club president and advertising director of the Sikeston Standard, appointed a committee to draft a new set of by-laws and establish objectives of the Club.

CONSUMERS NEED MORE PROTECTION

I get a lot of mail from Missourians who think that consumers deserve more protection than they have been getting, and I agree.

It has been estimated that consumers lose as much as $200 billion each year through fraud, deception, and marketing inequities.

While it is true that consumers already have rights against unfair or deceptive practices, as a practical matter they cannot exercise them. It is simply too expensive for an individual consumer to bring his grievance to court.

That is why I hope we can pass the "consumer class action" bill this year. It would allow consumers with similar complaints to band together in bringing their cases to court.

Consumer Agency?

We also need to insure that the consumer's voice is clearly heard within the government. Perhaps this will require a new independent consumer unit charged with the responsibility for advising the President on consumer matters and serving as a consumer advocate in the courts. At the very least, we have to expand the powers of the Federal Trade Commission.

Equally important is the need to set a "floor" under warranties, requiring manufacturers who want to warranty their products to meet minimum requirements. Too often consumers take products home only to find that the most basic defects escape through a loophole in the warranty.

Over the next few months, the Senate will be faced with other consumer questions as well. Do consumers have a right to know what ingredients are contained in food products? Do they have a right to have perishable foods marked as to the last day they can safely be bought? Should they have easy access to a "unit price" for foods sold in a variety of packagings?

I intend to support responsible legislation designed to protect the consumer, as I have in the past.

Market Data on Line

JEFFERSON CITY . . . A toll - free telephone number may make the difference between profit or loss for a good number of Missouri farmers this year.

By dialing a WATS number, Missouri farmers can obtain Missouri Farm Bureau's "Market Line'. for complete market information, relates MFBF Marketing Director Glen Peterson. Peterson and Market Analyst Toby Wright will handle the calls and give the latest information on livestock and grain markets.

"What we hope to do is give the livestock producer the total market picture," Peterson says. "This means up -to -the -minute markets as soon as the reports are gathered. Market analysis - - the reasons for a market going up or down, and how long to expect conditions affecting the market to remain - will be one of our most important efforts," Peterson adds.

"Grain marketing information will be gathered from teletype and contacts at the KANSAS City and St. Louis Boards of Trade, and country elevators," Peterson reports.

Farmers wanting to sell grain can get help through the "Market Line". "Call our WATS number, tell us what you have to sell, allow us time to get bids, and await our report," is how Peterson outlines the steps to take to sell grain through the MFBF information system.

Also available through the MFBF "Market Line" is the advice of an expert commodity broker, Peterson announces. A branch office of Hertz Commodities -- the largest trading house in the U.S. for live cattle futures -- is based in the "Market Line" office.

To obtain the toll -free WATS number, Peterson suggests farmers contact their county Farm Bureau office.

Better Cotton Yields Goal Of Campaign

CARUTHERSVILle — Jack Tipton, Caruthersville, and Dr. S. H. Bodenhamer, associate director of the college of agriculture for extension, have been appointed co-chairmen for Missouri in a Beltwide campaign to obtain "better cotton yields for profits and markets" in 1971.

Objective is to increase cotton yields to the maximum profitable level, utilizing recommended practices for each cotton-producing area, and to improve producer income. The goal also is to stabilize cotton's current competitive position and build a base for market expansion.

Special industry-government task forces are being set up in 14 major cotton-producing states with the over-all drive coordinated by the National Cotton Council and the Extension Services.

The effort was launched at a press conference in Washington earlier this month, called by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin and attended by National Cotton Council President C. R. Sayre of Greenwood, Miss. They pointed out that the following factors stress the need for maximum profitable cotton production:

(1) This is a decisive year due to a critical supply situation, (2) 1970-71 offtake is projected at 11-½ million bales as compared with 10-¾ million in 1970, and (3) the projected carryover of not more than 4-½ million bales is the lowest in 20 years.

They also explained that weather problems in major areas of the Belt have created concern over the 1971 crop, posing the threat of an inadequate supply. On the other hand, Mr. Sayre noted, the strong demand presents an unusual opportunity for grower profit.

Time to Sample Corn for Analysis

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

PORTAGEVILLE — Testing growing plants is a relatively new and accurate method of determining levels of major and minor elements present in the plants. The Area Soil Testing Laboratory at Portageville is offering this service to farmers again this year.

Any crop can be sampled. Corn is the first one to sample in our area. Corn planted in April is now ready to be sampled. You should begin sampling when you see the first silks emerging. Follow these steps in order to get a good sample. (1) When to Sample — when silks begin to emerge but before they dry. (2) Part of Plant — take the entire "ear" or "shot" leaf. Take leaf from top ear if stalk has two ears.

(3) How to Sample — remove one leaf per plant from 15 to 20 plants selected at random in the field. Break off leaf at base. Do not include portions of leaf sheath. Be sure hands are clean.

(4) Care and Handling of Sample - start with a clean bag. A kraft paper bag is ideal for collecting, drying and marking samples. It must be clean. New, unused bags are available at most grocers. The 10 to 12 lb. sizes are satisfactory for corn.

(5) Carry an Open Bag - drop the leaves in the open bag as they are removed from plants. Leave them loose to allow for air drying. Do not wad or tie the leaves into a bundle. Heating and molding may occur. Do not use a plastic bag.

(6) Leave the Bag Open - do not close the bag after the sample has been collected. Take sample immediately to your University Extension Center, Area Soil Testing Laboratory, Portageville, or air dry and then deliver or mail it.

It is also a good idea to take a soil sample from same area as plant sample. The results of both plant and soil will help in making fertilizer recommendations for next year's crop.

Every farmer should take at least one sample from his best corn field and one from his problem field. Tissue testing will tell you if adequate plant nutrients are available for maximum yields. You can get more information about plant testing by contacting your local University Extension Center. Request a copy of MU Guide 9131, "Sampling Plant Tissue and Soil for Analysis". Check with your local fertilizer dealer. He will probably have copies of the guide and information sheets for samples.

Unemployment Rates Remain Unfavorable

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — More Missourians had jobs in May than were working in April, but still unemployment was 5.1 per cent — exactly the rate of strike-torn May, 1970.

Herman Julien, director of the State Division of Employment Security, said today the reason for the remaining high rate of unemployment is unfavorable economic conditions.

"This year, although unemployment is decreasing, economic conditions have not favored a rapid expansion of employment," he said.

The total number of unemployed Missourians dropped by 3,700 for a total of 104,800 jobless in May. The dtop from April to May brought the state unemployment rate to the estimated 5.1 per cent.

Missouri workers earned more on jobs in May than in April. The division reported average weekly earnings for manufacturing production rose $1.07 in May, up from April's $140.34.

Big Feedlots Must Register

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri feedlots must apply for permit to continue operations by July 1. Only large operations of 1,000 head or more capacity must meet this requirement. According to the Environmental Protection Agency.

The Missouri Cattlemen's Assocition obtained this information Thursday, June 17, from the E.P.A. Regional Office in Kansas City. Responsibility for making the application is upon the feedlot operators. Failure to so this could result in litigation ending in fines and penalties. According to John Robinson, Executive Director of the Cattlemen's group, the E.P.A. is serious in their efforts to maintain and improve our environmental quality.

The 1,000 head feedlot application requirement is the first of a continuing program which will eventually bring all of our nations feeding industry under environmental quality control. Feedlot operators who fall into the 1,000 head capacity or over should contact immediately Mr. Robinson at the M.C.A. office in Jefferson City, the State Water Pollution Control Board, Jefferson City, or their local Corp of Engineers District Office for additional information.

Upon making the application, the E.P.A. may determine that necessary precautions have been taken and a permit will not be necessary. Those operations where no pollution control measures have been installed; it is probable that a permit to continue operations until control measures can be implemented will be required. Robinson further noted that if the applications reveal that qualifications are met, or permits are issued, this will give feedlot operations some measures of protection against future pollution liabilitysuits and litigations. The M.C.A.'s Executive officer urged all feedlot operators falling into the 1,000 head capacity to contact the association immediately for details about the applications and permits.

Stability Key to Cotton Marketing

CARUTHERSVILLE— J. R. Hutchison Jr., of Caruthersville, executive vice president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, today acknowledged that he did indeed say cotton prices were "too high."

However, he said his statement was not with respect to the price paid farmers for cotton, but the pricing that has taken place in the futures market by speculators.

The statement, released May 26 by the organization, has stirred up a hornet's nest of protest from cotton producers and other farm organizations involved with cotton.

"My reference to cotton being priced too high was in relation to fluctuations in the cotton market, not toward the price being paid the farmer," Hutchison said.

"As far as I am concerned, the price of cotton can't get too high to suit me—so long as it's stable and the market remains."

He continued that stability is the key to the situation rather than price and it was the present unstable and rapidly rising futures market for cotton of which he was critical.

"The cotton farmer has to realize the needs of his market, the textile mills. While they would like to see lower prices for cotton, the thing they fear most is rapid fluctuations in the price rather than high prices.

"They want a dependable supply and a dependable price upon which to make their plans. This is the one area in which synthetic competitors of cotton have a real advantage.

"With foreign competition, the textile mills have a hard enough time worrying about keeping production costs down without having to worry about guessing right on what the price of cotton will be in the future."

Hutchison said the price of cotton paid to the farmer has little bearing on the price of clothing to the consumer, so the actual price level paid to farmers is not the issue.

"In this respect I fully agree that higher, not lower, prices are needed for cotton farmers. But we want the price stabilized at a level at which a cotton farmer can make a living, not just up this year and way down the next."

Hutchison said in his statement that the 1967 prices of cotton rose far above the level that textile mills expected and they still had contracts to fulfill.

"Naturally they got a sour taste in their mouth over that," he said. "In such a situation it was the speculator rather than the farmer or textile mill that made the money."

With fear of low production in Texas, Arizona, and other cotton producing areas, Hutchison said it looks as if the 1971 might be a repeat of 1967 and it was about this that he was sounding a warning.

"What is needed is legislation calling for enough stockpile of cotton to afford stability in the market. Futhermore, we need something like the Federal Reserve Board — removed from politics — to administer the supply.

Hutchison said the textile mills are not particularly friendly toward cotton, but they are the market and their needs must be taken into consideration if cotton farmers are to retain the market.

Fluctuations in the price of cotton, he said, simply provide the textile mills an excuse to make greater and greater uses of synthetics.

"The buyer for a textile mill will tell you the price of cotton is too high. That's his job. But talk to the top man and he'll frequently tell you he doesn't care what the price is, so long as it's stable and dependable.

"My reference to the price of cotton being too high was a reference to the rapid increase in price on the futures market that creates confusion and fear on the part of textile manufacturers.

"If the price went way up and stayed there—where it could be depended upon by both the farmer and the manufacturer, I'd be clapping my hands instead of wringing them.

"But under the present system I'm afraid the uncertainty will mean a shift by the mills to more dependably priced synthetics—a loss of markets for cotton farmers that may be difficult to win back.

"The mills don't want to operate on a small margin of profit all year long and then end up with a loss because they guessed wrong on the price of their raw materials.

Farm Competition Keen Says Undersecretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under Secretary of Agriculture J. Phil Campbell says most urban people think farmers are wards of the government and that they do not work under the capitalistic free enterprise system.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he said.

"Farmers have always had to compete with more fellow producers of any specific commodity then their counterparts outside of agriculture," Campbell said.

The under secretary said when the American public learns this basic fact, there will be understanding and appreciation of the necessity and importance of Agriculture Department programs.

"It's an economic fact that farmers are expected by American consumers to produce a surplus. I seriously doubt there are any consumers in the United States who want farmers to produce a shortage," he said.

Campbell said that agricultural shortages would be advantageous for the few persons in the economy who would have a surplus to sell on a short market, and also would be highly beneficial to farm producers.

He pointed out that farm production is not nearly as manageable as in industries where the production line can be closed off when the market demands are met.

"Once agricultural production is placed in operation in order to produce for the demands of the market, it continues to produce to the point of a surplus," Campbell said in a statment for the Mississippi State Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Service at Biloxi.

"It should be obvious to consumers and producers alike that agriculture's constant overproduction and the delivery of this overproduction to the market place makes it extremely difficult-and often impossible-to obtain a price from the market that adequately covers the cost of production, much less return a reasonable profit," he said.

Campbell said the Nixon administration does not believe in cheap food. "We believe that the farmer should receive and the housewife should expect to pay food prices in the market place that will allow the farmer to stay in business and maintain a satisfactory standard of living for his family."

On The Fence Row

BLOOMFIELD — Steps are being taken to detect the presence of southern corn leaf blight and other corn diseases which might invade the state this year. This monitaring program was planned and is being conducted by a special committee on Southern Corn Leaf Blight from the University of Missouri at Columbia in cooperation with Extension area agronomy spceialists through out the state.

A network of 20 corn disease monitoring plots has been established in scattered locations through out the state. Each plot consists of two completed sets of test material planted at two different dates. Each planting includes 10 carefully selected corn varieties. These varieties were chosen for either susceptibility or resistance to the various corn diseases on order to provide a full range of test material. The plots are in regular corn fields and will be handled normally along with the rest of the field in which each is located. The plots will be checked each week for southern, northern, and yellow corn leaf blights, seedling blight, eyespot, Stewart's disease, and maise dwarf mosaic by area agronomy specialists or plant pathologists and reports will be sent to the University for computer analysis. Information obtained from this studv will then be made available to newspapers and radio and television stations at least once a week.

Monitoring stations were established in this general area in Bollinger and Pemiscott Counties and at the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville.

Researchers believe that these plots will provide short range warnings as well as important long range study data that will help plant breeders in the future.

In addition to the state monitoring program, Missouri, along with several other states, will be cooperating with several federal services in an experimental corn blight watch. These services include the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Laboratory for Application of Remote Sensing (LARS).

A total of 200 sample sites-each approximately one mile wide and eight miles long-are to be monitored over the corn belt. Color infra-red photographs will be made of the sites from high altitude by NASA aircraft on a bi-weekly basis. The colors on the film will be interpreted and catagorized into classes on the basis of the presence or absence of blight, and if present, the degree of infection-slight, moderate or severe. Statistical information will be obtained and studied. This multi-state watch can be considered an experiment as nothing of this nature has been attempted in agriculture previously. The final analysis of this study will not be made until after the final flights in September.

Cool Weather Bootheel Prospect

by
Leonard F. Hand
Farm Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE— Weather patterns for the 30-day period ending Mid-July are expected to produce below normal temperature averages and near normal rain totals over the Missouri Bootheel.

High pressure systems are expected to push cooler air southward into the mid-Mississippi valley more frequently than during the first half of June. This will also provide for increased drying potential with lower relative humidities than are found in the Maritime Tropical air flowing northward out of the Gulf of Mexico.

Heaviest concentrations of rainfall will accompany low pressure centers passing well to the north and west of the region. The opportunity for thunderstorms moving with and developing ahead of cool fronts represents the major source of moisture for Southeast Missouri. Distribution of scattered activity maintains prospects for considerable variability in soil water levels over the Bootheel similar to conditions that have developed in the past two weeks.

Daily forecasts, supplemented by the extended outlooks, will give farmers a 5 day projection of weather trends upon which to schedule operations to take best advantage of open weather. The wheat harvest is being slowed in some areas by wet soils that maintain high humidity within the plant zone. Wheat straw toughened by moisture has interfered with threshing, a situation that will improve rather slowly until increased winds and drier air reach the area.

Soybeans planted immediately behind wheat will have the benefit of amply soil moisture for germination, rains so far in June should have replenished sub-soil reservoirs that have depleted somewhat before wheat ripened.

Shower patterns should be watched for effects upon the upcoming harvest of early peaches and the need to maintain spray schedules in orchards. A second cutting of alfalfa is near due and field curing of fescue in the hill country will require a close watch of the 5 day trends.

Some corn is already silking and that crop will be reaching peak demand for water. Both the progress of the season and the accelerating growth stages of crops increase the pace of water extraction from soils. During this period we usually find potential evapotranspiration exceeding rainfall by 2 inches or more. As root systems move downward, that deficity can be made up in most soils by eater availabel there. However, depletion of that reserve will make trends that emerge by mid-season more critical in terms of eventual need for supplemental irrigation.

Potential water use by early corn from June 14 through July 18 is about 9.88 inches, for late corn 9.64 inches, for early cotton 7.47 inches, late cotton 5.08, soybeans about 4.59 inches.

Crops seldom use water at this potential rate in the humid climate of Southeast Missouri, according to data compiled at the Office for Agriculture. So far this season, water use has run just about 50 per cent of potential. Weather factors sh' ld increase this percentage ' ng the period ending .id-July. Estimates released twice weekly during the season will indicate the amount of water extracted from soils by individual crops. These will be made available to radio stations over the NOAA Weather Wire.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole during the period Mid-June through Mid-July is 3.64 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Caruthersville 3.46 inches; Doniphan 4.18 inches; New Madrid 3,89 inches; Poplar Bluff 3.75 inches; Dexter 3,79 inches; Morehouse 3.53 inches; Parma 3.76 inches and Sikeston 3.64 inches.

Short term averages for other points:

Advance 3.46 inches; Bloomfield 3,84 inches; Cape Girardeau 3.33 inches; Deering 3.43 inches; Malden 3.80 inches; Puxico 3.52 inches; Wappapello Dam 3.82 inches; Bernie 3.78 inches; Charleston 3.63 inches; Clearwater Dam 3.57 inches; Kennett 3.28 inches; Portageville 3.41 inches and Qulin 3.49 inches.

Just in Time for the summer tourist avalanche, a sight designed to help visitors see the sights has been added to London's attractions. One of the famed red, double-decker buses, above, has been converted into a mobile restaurant, "The Upper Crust." The top-deck eatery, below, can seat 24 who can enjoy a four-course champagne lunch while touring the historic landmarks of the British capital. Bottom deck serves as the kitchen.

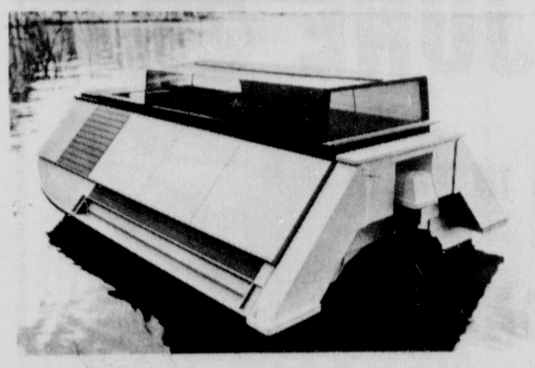

Amphibian Camper

is the contribution to the booming camping movement of a James F. Taylor of Raleigh, N.C., who has designed a "Trailable Houseboat," a vehicle that converts from a camper on land (left) to a runabout (lower left) or catamaran houseboat (model above) on water powered by a 25-h.p. motor. A compact six feet by 21 for traveling, it opens up to 14 by 21 for land or water use. Working largely in aluminum, Taylor received a commission for the design in Aluminum Company of America's Ventures in Design program.

That's The Law

Shots at Gun Law Miss Mark

To curb those with gunning little ways, a state law was enacted that required identification cards for anyone who wanted to purchase a rifle or shotgun. Immediately, Dead-Eye Ruppert and a group of his fellow sharpshooters took exception to the statute.

Whether they were small game hunters or big game hunters, they agreed unanimously that the new law infringed upon their rights and hastened to court to have it declared illegal.

"The Constitution clearly gives us the right to bear arms," they protested. "And, a state cannot taketh away what the Constitution giveth. With all the red tape and inconvenience created by the new law," they pointed out, "the effect is to frustrate a person's desire to purchase a rifle and illegally impedes him from doing so."

"Nonsense," responded a state official. "While it may require the completion of a few forms, the new law may help turn up a few crackpots who shouldn't have a rifle. Duck the identification cards now, and we may all have to duck some bullets later."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you shoot down the gun control law?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that under a state's police power, the common good takes precedence over private rights: that our basic freedom may be curtailed if sufficient reason exists for such curtailment. From the day we are born, noted the judge, when a birth certificate is filed to the day we die when official certification thereof must be recorded, we spend the intervening years obtaining one different type of license after another. These burdens we assume for the good that flows therefrom. There is no basic difference in a requirement to obtain a gun purchaser's identification card.

Leading Republican Sees Nixon Defeat In Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading conservative Republican is telling her supporters a poll shows President Nixon can't be re-elected in 1972 and should bow out in favor of California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly, a biographer of 1964 GOP nominee Barry Goldwater, says in her June newsletter a poll she took indicates "grassroots Republicans believe Nixon is certain to lose the next election."

The newsletter also says that, if Nixon bows out, Reagan would be an overwhelming favorite of GOP conservatives with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew a weak second. It adds that, if Nixon runs, 72 per cent of those polled want him to keep Agnew on the ticket.

Recent elections in California, Florida and Missouri are cited as evidence conservative Republicans might back a Democrat in 1972 rather than a Republican they dislike.

Mrs. Schlafly, whose own effort to win election to the House from a downstate Illinois district was unsuccessful. Says her poll is "the most comprehensive and scientific in-depth survey of grass -roots Republican opinion ever taken."

It was based on home interviews with 3,423 people, a sample twice as large as that used in the Harris and Gallup polls.

It shows that 32 per cent of those who said they voted for Nixon in 1968 would not again vote for him, even if the only alternatives are voting for Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine or Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, or staying home.

Twenty - five per cent of the 1968 Nixon voters said they made a mistake. And 37 per cent of those in the poll said they found practically no difference between the Nixon administration and one that might have been headed by defeated 1968 Democratic presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey.

The people surveyed, Mrs. Schlafly said, "are the people who elected President Nixon in 1968 and without whom Nixon cannot hope to be reelected in 1972."

The poll showed Republicans think Nixon would carry or is leading in only 13 states that have 83 electoral votes, and won't carry or is trailing in 32 states with 416 electoral votes. Seven states with 39 electoral votes were rated tossups. A total of 270 electoral votes are required to win.

Without Nixon in the race, the poll showed 60 per cent favor Reagan and 23 per cent Agnew.

Court Issues Subpoenas Into Policeman's Death

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Subpoenas were issued today for television and newspaper reporters, a newspaper executive and two police officials to appear at a hearing Thursday on coverage of a policeman's death.

Stephen Jones of the Oklahoma Civicl Liberties Union has asked the district court to restrict officials from commenting and the news media from reporting on the shooting death of patrolman Michael Ratikan last week.

Jones represents Jerry Lewis Fowler, a 24-year-old Oklahoma City man charged with murder in Ratikan's death.

A hearing is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Thursday in district court.

Subpoenaes were issued for the news directors of television stations KWTV and WKY in Oklahoma City and KOTV in Tulsa, Oklahoma City Times reporter Marv Goddard, Daily Oklahoman and Times circulation manager Helge Holm, Dist. Atty. Curtis P. Harris and Police Chief Wayne Lawson.

The subpoena received by KWTV directed the station to bring "copies of all films used in the broadcast over television relating to the death of officer Michael Ratikan and-or the investigation of Jerry Lewis Fowler and any interviews with the honorable Curtis Harris..."

Iowa Commission Adjourns Hearings

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa Commerce Commission Wednesday adjourned until "sometime in fall" a hearing on whether to grant a 15 per cent rate increase to Union Electric Co. of St. Louis.

The utility, which provides electricty to some 52,000 persons southeast Iowa, cited increasing costs Wednesday as the major reason for seeking the rate increase.

James Huiskamp, a lawyer representing the Keokuk School District protested that the proposed rate boost is revolutionary.

Huiskamp claimed the increase is too much for a company that operates without competition.

A company witness, executive vice-president W. E. Cornelius, told the commission hearing that the firm's rate of return, profits and dividends all increased last year.

Cornelius added, however, that the company has projected decreases for 1971 unless it is granted high rates in Iowa, Missouri and Illinois.

The higher rates for Union Electric customers went into effect in February of 1970 after the company posted a bond to cover refunds if the commission deies a permanent increase.

Union Electric serves the Iowa communites of Madison, Donnellson, Franklin, Hillsboro, Houghton, Keokuk, Stockport, Salem, Montrose and St. Paul.

The proposed 15 per cent increase would that the average householder's monthy bill would increase from $12.25 to $14.08, company records show.

Widow Files Damage Suit In Truck Explosion Death

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The widow of John Galt, a Tri State Motors truck driver killed in the explosion of his dynamite-laden truck last fall on Interstate Highway 44 near Springfield, has filed a $50,000 damage suit in Greene County Circuit Court.

The suit names as defendants Frank Fitzsimmons, international president of the Teamsters Union; Francis Martha, international executive secretary; James Hoffa, immediate past president; William W. Kitts, president of Local 823, and Ray Krutsinger, secretary-treasurer of Local 823.

The union was on strike against Tri State Motors of Joplin, Mo., between Sept. 14 and Sept. 30, 1970. The petition contends the officers and agents of the union "by their sentiments and actions caused Bobby Lee Shuler and Gerald Bowden to believe they could and should assist" the union by discouraging Tri State employes from driving trucks for the company.

Shuler was sentenced Wednesday to 99 years in prison for second degree murder. Bowden received a 10 year sentence.

Veterans Against The War Plan Regional Meetings

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Western Missouri and Kansas Region of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War is planning a series of antiwar actions for the Independence Day weekend in Kansas City, John M. Upton, the organization's regional coordinator said today.

Upton said the demonstrators will conduct a series of mock sears-and-destroy missions in various parts of the city July 4 to dramatize their opposition to the war.

Speeches and a candlelight march are planned that evening.

"We are trying to do all this very conservatively," said Upton, adding that the group has obtained a permit for the march and a campsite at the Liberty Memorial.

He said he had no idea how many veterans would attend.

Portageville Will Celebrate July 4

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Jaycees encourage all citizens in the Portageville area to celebrate the Fourth of July here at the City Park. There is plenty of parking space and the neighbors don't mind the clean activities that goes on thru the day and evening.

Among their activities: Dance, Picnic, Barbecue, Carnival, Fireworks, Good Fellowship, with the idea in mind of making this event (as in the old days), one whereby, old friends meet, visit, after traveling many miles from their old home town. One Jaycee member remarked, "what could be better?"

The Dance is scheduled for July 3 and the Barbecue will start at 1 p.m. July 4, at the Picnic. Several stands have been planned which include a dunking stand, dart stand, fishing stand, zingo stand. They will be selling Barbecue Pork and Chicken, and will have sandwiches and soft drinks.

During the afternoon and evening Gift Certificates will be given away and as a grand prize a color television set.

Plans are to have a $50(fireworks display. Merchants are helping the Jaycees in financing the fireworks display.

Starting July 6 the Razorback Amusement Show will be here, located at the Union Farmers Gin Yard. The Carnival will open on the 6th of July and run through the 10th. This show is the cleanest and most modern of performances in the Portageville area.

Purse Stolen, Man Arrested

CHARLESTON— Paul Johnson, 25, of Charleston, was arrested at 3 a.m. Friday on a felony charge of burglary according to Deputy Sheriff Everett Holley.

Johnson is accused of entering the home of Tillman Moore, 519 Olive St., through the back door and stealing a purse belonging to Mrs. Moore. No money was taken.

Johnson is being held in lieu of a $1,000 bond. He will appear in magistrate court Thursday.

Blind Newsman Hired For Television

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)— When you first watch Paul Caputo reading the news over WWLP-TV, you wonder why he is wearing dark glasses.

If you watch carefully, you see his arms are moving back and forth and then you realize why— he is reading the news in Braille.

WWLP believes Caputo is the first blind newsmen on U.S. television.

Blind since birth, Caputo, 26, joined the station's news staff this month, with a helping hand from modern technology and his seeing eye dog, Lupo.

"I have the feeling more people are watching me than are listening to me," he said in an interview. Viewers have accepted him and congratulated the station for taking the gamble.

Caputo takes notes by tape recording interviews on a pocket-size recorder. For on-the-air material, he uses a braille typewriter.

Caputo was a 1969 graduate of American International College, where he was a disc jockey on its FM station, Caputo has been a ham radio operator for 11 years.

He telephoned WWLP owner William L. Putnam last November and asked if there were any openings.

"I didn't mention my visual tatus to him, since so many people tend to stereotype blind people and not give them a chance," Caputo said.

But Putnam was not put off by Caputo's blindness when he came for an interview and promised him a try at a job.

It was contingent on research at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, where a team was developing a high-speed braille embossing machine, known as "Braillemboss," which can be connected to newswire teleprinters to produce instant reports in braille.

Caputo reads the braille copy with one hand while finding the next line with the other.

"The first time, I couldn't read, I couldn't think, and I couldn't talk," he said.

"Then one day, Bill Putnam told me, 'You're going on the air tonight.'"

Caputo came across cool and calm, and has been on the air Tuesday and Thursday nights ever since.

Church Property Put On Tax Rolls

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Shawnee County Assessor George Schnellbacher said today he is putting property of the Presbyterian Church on the tax rolls of the county.

Schnellbacher contends Presbyterian Church properties are no longer being used exclusively for religious purposes because nationally the church had voted to contribute $10,000 to the legal defense fund of Angela Davis, Negro militant and an avowed Communist.

Shnellbacher said he had written the state Boardof Tax Appeals concerning his authority to take action.

A representative of the board said in reply it "is of the opinion that you have an adequate remedy to cover this situation" and said Schnellbacher should exercise the authority granted him.

The tax appeals representative cited a statute giving the county assessor authority to revoke a property tax exemption.

The statute also gives the property owner procecures for protesting the action.

Schnellbacher said he is certain Presbyterian Church officials will appeal when he puts the property back on the tax rolls.

Presbyterian church officials had no comment immediately.
